NLRB Rules Hiring Halls Of Seamen Are Illegal

CIO Union Ordered Not to Strike to Keep Custom, Opening Way To New Injunction

The National Labor Relations Board, in a decision of profound importance to industry and labor, ruled unanimously yesterday that "hiring halls" of the CIO National Maritime Union of the Great Lakes are illegal.

It ordered the union not to strike to keep them.

This ruling can be enforced by the Federal Courts. It thus opens the path for a possible new injunction to block a Great Lakes strike when an existing injunction expires early in September.

Furthermore, it seems to provide Government attorneys a ready weapon to block indefinitely any strike to maintain union hiring halls—on the Pacific or Atlantic—if the board should find that the halls in question "discriminate" against nonunion job applicants in the manner of those on the Great Lakes.

The halls are widespread throughout the maritime industry. Not all of them operate exactly alike. The board's decision applies to only this one union in its relations with only four companies. But it serves as a guidepost to what the board would do in all cases where the circumstances were the same.

A hiring hall is an institution by which a union furnishes new employes when needed.

The issue is still in dispute between employers and five Atlantic and Pacific Coast unions threatening to strike September 2. The contracts of at least four other unions have continued the provision pending a decision by the Supreme Court.

The ruling was issued a few hours after the National Maritime Union (the Nation's biggest shipping union) reached agreement with East and Gulf Coast employes on a new contract that continues the hiring hall. The agreement provides that the hall shall stay at least until the Supreme Court rules on its legality.

The agreement called for wage increases of $25 a month for boatswains and $12.50 for other per-

Bewildered Owner Thanks 'All'

Thousands See Maryland Farm Take on $20,000 Value in Day

IT'S MAGIC—Spectators walk along rapidly resurfaced road toward new $10,000 dairy barn which workmen were completing when this picture was made at the Thrasher farm

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A somewhat puzzled Maryland farm owner—53-year-old Mrs. Nellie V. Thrasher—yesterday saw her 175-acre farm made over. It was part of "the old place" near where she was born.

She traveled about, watching 500 men with 150 machines build ponds, a new dairy barn, paint and remodel her home, install latest forestry projects, and change the land over from straight-row to contour farming.

She was confused by the tremendous crowd that swarmed over the acres that have been in her family since 1877. She was bewildered by the high dignitaries of both State and Nation who greeted and congratulated her. She was especially interested in the numbers of foreign visitors—there were several ambassadors, and swarms of agricultural attaches from Washington embassies and ministries.

She spoke her thanks simply and eloquently—reading from a yellow pad upon which she had scribbled a few notes of her own.

"I want to think," she said, "that this is not all being done for me—that many of my neighbors and others here today will see much of benefit to them.

"But I want to thank you all."

Arabs Fire On U. N.-Led Food Convoy

New Violations Of Truce Occur Despite Promises From Both Sides

From Press Dispatches

Despite new assurances to the United Nations by Jewish and Arab representatives that they would continue to observe the Palestine truce, there were further violations in the Holy Land yesterday.

The main road to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv was closed by a U. N. Truce Commission order after heavy machinegun fire was directed at a U. N. jeep from the Arab Legion's fortress at Latrun. Three United States Air Force officers were passengers in the jeep.

According to reports from Tel Aviv, the party dived into roadside briar patches on three occasions to escape the machinegun bullets as they led a 14-truck Jewish food convoy across the Latrun no-man's land. On the fourth try, they took the convoy through.

U. N. supervisory officials in the Israeli capital classified the Arab gunfire as "a major truce breach."

The new pledges on truce observance were made to the Security Council at Lake Success, N. Y., after the United States and Canada had warned that the council could not permit either party to terminate the truce without facing punitive action.

Grand Mufti Urges Action

Aubrey S. Eban, Israeli representative, told the Council that so long as the truce is in effect Israel will observe it. He said, however, that Israel hopes for early peace talks to replace the truce.

The Arab position was set forth by Faris El Khouri of Syria, who declared the Arabs accepted the order and do not object to keeping it so long as it is observed by the Jews.

In Lebanon, Hai Amin El Husseini, former grand mufti of Jerusalem, called upon all Arab nations to rush troops into Jerusalem to keep the Jews from annexing it.

His plea was sounded as Arab and Israeli artillery dueled in Jerusalem for the third straight day.

Both Sides Held Guilty

An official of the truce commission announced in Haifa that observers' reports from Jerusalem indicated both sides guilty of truce breaches. He implied that most of the heavy shells were being fired by the Jews.

Secretary of State Marshall disclosed at a news conference in Washington yesterday that the United States, France and Belgium are preparing to send 300 more unarmed military observers to Palestine. The United States has agreed to supply 125 enlisted men, requested by Count Folke Bernadotte, the United Nations mediator, Marshall said. France also will send 125 and Belgium 50.

Their arrival will double the number of observers the three powers have on the scene.

Secretary Marshall confirmed that the United States had turned down Bernadotte's request for American troops to carry out the truce by force of arms if necessary. It was referred to the Security Council, which has yet to act.

Reds Assume Sole Control Over Danube

Western Powers Record Refusal to Accept Decision of Belgrade Parley

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 18 (AP).—The Communist bloc posted a "Danube for the Danubians" sign over Europe's most vital inland waterway today as they voted themselves exclusive control of the River.

The Western Powers officially recorded their refusal to accept the decision, although only the United States cast a "no" ballot on the final vote to accept the Russian-drawn pact.

Representatives of France and Britain had left their seats at the conference table for places on the outskirts of the room.

(In Washington, the State Department said the vote indicated Russia's determination "to perpetuate its economic and political enslavement of the Danubian peoples."

(The State Department served notice that the United States will refuse to recognize the authority of any commission formed to control the Danube under the new convention. It added this policy will apply to those parts of Austria and Germany under American control.)

The Western Powers' next step was not announced, but the Western States indicated previously they would ask the World Court at The Hague to rule on the new pact.

The conference windup came after 20 days of arguments on Western power motions to write into the new Danube Convention specific guarantees that the river will be open to vessels of all nations without discrimination.

The Communist bloc, in the majority at an international meeting for the first time since the war's end, voted on more than 115 occasions to reject all Western attempts to revise the Russian plan. There was no substantial change in the draft presented originally by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, which gives each Danube nation sovereignty over its own portion of the river.

Official Document Signed

The conference ended officially tonight with the signing of the official document. None of the Western Powers representatives dropped in for the signing ceremony. All the rest were there, including Anna Pauker, Romania's foreign minister, in a dress of "new look" length.

Before the final vote, United States Ambassador Cavendish Cannon accused Russia of "deception" in its plan and claimed the Communist bloc had been used with "cynical" solidarity to achieve the Soviet aim.

Cannon said the United States, hopeful of reaching an agreement to unchain the 1800-mile waterway, had brought to the conference

RUSSIANS WANT HER, TOO—"I will never return to the old country," said Russian-born Lydia Makarova, the piano prodigy from Leningrad, in an interview in Stockholm yesterday. Meanwhile the Swedish Foreign Office renewed its warning to the Soviet Charge d'Affaires to "leave the girl alone." Lydia, 19, fled to Sweden in 1944 after her mother died. Her case is said to parallel that of Mrs. Oksana S. Kosenkina, who threw herself from a window of the Russian Consulate in New York last week.

Marshall Reflects Indignation Felt Over Russians' Propaganda Drive

Stern words from Secretary of State Marshall yesterday foretold a stinging American rebuke to Russia within 24 hours for pressing its charges against the United States in the refugee school teacher cases.

At a news conference, Marshall appeared fed-up with the Soviet diplomatic and propaganda campaigns built around the cases of Mrs. Oksana Stepanova Kosenkina and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Samarine, Soviet citizens who don't want to go back.

The United States, he said, views with serious concern the Russian charges against this Government and some of its officials involved in handling the refugee teachers. The teachers have been promised United States protection.

The concern arises, Marshall said, from the fact that evidence placed in the hands of the State Department by New York police authorities does not bear out the Soviet claims. Moreover, he said, the action of Mrs. Kosenkina—who desperately jumped out of a consulate window last Thursday—itself refutes the Russian charges.

It was unusual for the Secretary, normally a stickler for secrecy at such times, to discuss the line of an American position 24 hours before it is formally expressed to a foreign government in a note.

His action apparently reflected the indignation felt by many officials here over Russia's repeatedly making charges of kidnaping, connivance, imprisonment and the like against the United States in spite of repeated American denials and the action of the school teachers themselves. Both Samarine and Mrs. Kosenkina have volun-

Lease Not Renewed On Soviet Consulate

New York, Aug. 18 (NYHT).—The Soviet consulate's lease on the building at 7 East 71st st., where Mrs. Oksana Stepanova Kosenkina lived in seclusion for six days before jumping to freedom, expired July 1 and has not been renewed, it was learned today.

Soviet Consul Yakov M. Lomakin and his staff have been protected by the Federal Housing and Rent Act of 1948.

The thirty-three room mansion is owned by Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge, dog fancier and niece of the late John D. Rockefeller. The consulate is negotiating for a new lease, but Mrs. Dodge would prefer them to find a home elsewhere.

House Group Checks Hiss Story Here

Lived Unwittingly With Red Agent, Says Ex-State Dept. Man

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

House investigators yesterday sought evidence here to check the statement of Alger Hiss, former State Department officer, that he once lived with a Red agent without knowing his connections.

They already have found three new witnesses, who have been called to answer some of the questions raised by the discrepancies in testimony given at hearings by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Representative Nixon (R., Calif.), committee member, said last night the three will be questioned behind closed doors here Friday and Saturday. All are from New York, he said.

"Somebody has committed perjury in the Hiss-Chambers controversy," Nixon asserted.

The three witnesses located by committee investigators were said to be former Federal employes who knew both Hiss and Chambers. Hiss was said to have told the committee members they could uphold his version of his relations with Chambers.

Hiss Changes His Story

Hiss told members of the committee in New York Tuesday he did know Chambers, but under another name. In an open hearing of the committee Hiss previously had denied knowing Chambers by name or recognizing a photograph of him.

Confronted by Chambers in a room at the Commodore Hotel in New York, Hiss said he recognized Chambers as a man he had known as "George Crosley" and remembered that their families had briefly shared an apartment here in the 1930s. Later, Hiss related, he sublet the apartment to Chambers.

At no time, Hiss insisted, did he know Chambers was anything but the free-lance journalist he represented himself to be. Chambers has testified he was a courier for a Soviet spy ring when he

Leap Victim Is Placed in Oxygen Tent

Mrs. Kosenkina Still In Critical Condition, N. Y. Hospital Says

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—The teacher who jumped from a window of the Russian consulate and became the central figure in an international controversy was put in an oxygen tent and given another blood transfusion late today.

Critically hurt, Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina had been given several transfusions since she was taken to Roosevelt Hospital after her fall. She has many broken bones and other injuries.

The hospital said she was put in an oxygen tent when her breathing became "somewhat labored" and her temperature rose to 103.4.

Later, at 8 p. m. (EST) the hospital said her condition had "improved in the past two hours" and her temperature had dropped to 102.2.

Meanwhile, Yakov M. Lomakin, Soviet consul general, made another move to see the Russian teacher who has been quoted as saying she did not want to see anyone from the consulate.

His vice consul, Zot I. Chepurnykh, said Lomaki nwould ask police permission to visit Mrs. Kosenkina at the hospital. Police said, however, that permission must come from the hospital authorities.

Later, hospital officials said no one could visit the teacher because of her critical condition. However the consulate was told it might send a surgeon of its own choice to the hospital.

Zena Ivanora, pretty Soviet consular secretary, brought a box of flowers and a letter in a diplomat envelope to the hospital today.

She was refused permission to deliver them personally. She left the flowers but took the letter

Bender Seeks Kaiser-Frazer Lease Data

Representative Asks WAA for Details On Steel Plant Deal

Representative Bender (R., Ohio) called on the War Assets Administration yesterday to provide the House with full information concerning lease of the 28-million-dollar Government-owned blast furnace and coke oven plant in Cleveland to the Kaiser-Frazer Corp.

War Assets Administrator Jesse Larson, meanwhile, disclosed that Kaiser-Frazer only two days ago had been offered a 20-year firm lease on the plant with an option to purchase the property "as is, where is" for a base price of $14,200,000.

On the West Coast, Henry J. Kaiser, chairman of the corporation's board, said he would "welcome any investigation" of the deal.

In a letter to Kaiser-Frazer, dated August 16, Larson said the Republic Steel Corp., which has been operating the plant since it was built by the Government during the war, had rejected proposals for leasing or acquiring the plant.

Larson said in the letter that continued operation of the plant is vitally necessary in the national interest of the United States. He told Kaiser-Frazer:

"In order to provide for continued operation I propose its acquisition and operation by your company through purchase or a 20-year firm lease." The WAA gave Kaiser-Frazer until midnight August 26 to act on its offer.

The WAA disclosed a letter from Kaiser-Frazer dated Tuesday, August 17, saying the corporation ac-

Truman Plans To Campaign In All Sections

McGrath Announces Decision After Long Talk With President

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman plans to carry his campaign into every section of the United States, it was announced at the White House yesterday.

The announcement was made by Senator J. Howard McGrath, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, after he had talked with Mr. Truman for more than two hours.

"He's going to be a busy fellow," McGrath told reporters.

It was learned that Mr. Truman's first barnstorming trip, following his Labor Day visit to Michigan, may take him into the South—to such places as Birmingham, Ala., New Orleans, La., and some yet-to-be-designated city or cities in Texas.

He plans to challenge the Dixiecrat leaders on their own ground and to attempt to rally the rank-and-file voters to his own Democratic standard.

If the trip into the Deep South does come early, the Chief Executive probably will fly to the American Legion convention at Miami, Fla., Oct. 18-21, and return to Washington immediately.

Some of Mr. Truman's political associates had thought he might start his barnstorming through the South after the Legion convention, but they were under a misapprehension as to the date. Mid-October will be a critical period in the presidential campaign, and one which probably will find Mr. Truman fighting on some more

'Axis Sally' of German Radio To Arrive Here This Weekend

"Axis Sally" Gillars, the American woman whose charming voice intrigued GIs over the German radio during the war, will arrive in Washington sometime this weekend to face charges of treason.

A spokesman for the Department of Justice said yesterday that the woman, Mildred Gillars, 38-year-old native of Portland, Me., is being transported here by air from Germany under Army custody. The exact time of her arrival is uncertain, he said.

Witnesses summoned by the Justice Department will be heard by a Federal grand jury on "treasonable activities" charges brought by the Department against Miss Gillars, he disclosed. He declined to say when the jury would convene.

In order to bring the action against the feminine Nazi propagandist here, the aircraft's first stop in this country will be Washington. Under the law, a person charged with treason must be tried at the point of arrival into the United States.

"Axis Sally," whose persuasive voice enjoined American troops nightly to "go back to your wives and sweethearts," began broadcasting for the Germans in 1943.

She was captured after months of search in March, 1946, and since then has been in and out of custody in the United States Zone of Germany. American authorities have kept her under observation ever since her first apprehension, however.

Miss Gillars went to Germany in 1934 to study piano in Dresden. During the war she was the highest-paid performer on the Nazi radio; she has said she planned to go on the German stage when the war ended.

The sweet-voiced propagandist, whose once jet-black hair has grayed, lost her United States passport in 1941, and is uncertain whether she is still an American citizen. She began broadcasting for the Germans, she has said, because it gave her "the outlet for dramatic expression I had always sought."

Her mother accompanied her to Germany but she has been quoted as saying "I don't know where my mother or the rest of my family are living and I don't want to know."

Marshall Silent on Dewey Plan To Return Colonies to Italy

Secretary of State Marshall declined yesterday to comment on the suggestion of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey that Italy be given administrative control of her former African colonies under a United Nations trusteeship.

Secretary Marshall pointed out in a press conference here yesterday that the problem is being discussed in London by representatives of this country, England, Russia and France.

As Republican presidential nominee, the Governor told a delegation of Americans of Italian extraction Tuesday that he favored placing Libya, Somaliland, and Eritrea under Italian control, with the U. N. as trustee. They are now under British military occupation.

"The industrious people of Italy have made great progress toward economic recovery under most difficult conditions," the Governor told the delegation. "I strongly believe that this recovery will be assisted, and the Communist menace will receive another setback, if the Italian people are now given an ample opportunity to take part in the future development of the resources of these African areas."

Federal Reserve Report

28% of Families Spent More Than They Earned Last Year

By the United Press

About 28 per cent of the Nation's families spent more last year than they earned, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

Families as a whole saved less during 1947 than in any other post-war year, the board said. It added that willingness to spend both income and savings and to borrow money for "a record quantity of consumer goods and services at inflated prices," was largely responsible for the situation.

The board estimated that about 64 per cent of all families, about 31 million "spending units," saved 25 billion dollars during the year. About four million families saved 8 per cent of what they earned.

Most of the families that spent about 11 billion dollars more than they earned were not really in "adverse circumstances," the board said. Purchases of automobiles, furniture, radios and the like helped unbalance the budget for almost 60 per cent of them.

The board noted a "substantial increase" in the number of fam-

Comic Books Inspire Torture Of Playmate, 7

New Albany, Ind., Aug. 18 (U.P.).—The county prosecutor said today that three small boys used "vicious comic book ideas" and strung up a playmate and tortured him with matches.

Prosecutor Eugene Hancock said the boys inflicted their horrors on the 7-year-old son of a minister. They said they had planned to "hang one kid every third Sunday."

They lured their victim into a woods, held a knife to his back to force him to undress, bound his hands, strung a rope around his neck, and suspended him from a tree.

Then they danced around him, touching lighted matches to his nude body as they passed. Finally the boys were frightened away by noises and the victim managed to free himself.

Life of 43-Year-Old Alger Hiss to Date Is Success Story of Baltimore Origin

Alger Hiss, who has denied to the House Committee on Un-American Activities that he ever was a Communist Party member, much less active in its underground, is a Baltimorean whose life to date has been a success story.

* * * * * * *

Hiss, 43, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace — a 37-year-old foundation with a 10-million-dollar endowment fund was one of five children born to a Baltimore family of middle class circumstances.

Besides Alger (a family name on his father's side) there were Donald, who like his brother became an attorney and has offices in Washington, and Ann, who became head of the women's physical education department of a Southern university, and two who died.

Alger, a good student, was graduated from Baltimore City College, a public school, when 17. The following year he attended Powder Point Academy, then entered Johns Hopkins University as a political science major. In 1926, the year of his graduation, he was elected a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary academic society.

Secretary to Holmes

He then entered the Harvard Law School. During his three years there he caught the eye of Felix Frankfurter, and was recommended by him for the highly desirable post of secretary to Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

To the aging Holmes, Hiss read philosophy and occasionally novels, and discussed legal philosophy with that great mind.

From Holmes' service Hiss turned to private law practice, practicing a year in Boston and another in New York. Then the New Deal, always appreciative of bright young men, beckoned.

From 1933 to 1935 Hiss was with the Department of Agriculture, first as an assistant to the general counsel of the AAA, and then as assistant general counsel. During the second year he also was a legal assistant for the Department of Justice on a special Senate committee investigating the munitions industry.

Assistant to Sayre

In 1936 Hiss became assistant to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre. Six years later Hiss became an assistant to the adviser on political relations for the Department of State, and after two years in that post, was transferred to another section of the Department, the Office of Far Eastenr Affairs, as a special assistant to the director.

Hiss joined the newly formed Office of Special Political Affairs on May 1, 1944. The office was responsible for development and coordination of American foreign policy, and for preparation of briefs for American delegates to international conferences. Hiss was a special assistant to the director, but seven months later became deputy director wih matters relating to the proposed United Nations coming under his supervision.

In February, 1945, as a member of President Roosevelt's staff of advisers, Hiss attended the Yalta Conference, and a month later succeeded Leo Pasvolsky as director of the Office of Special Political Affairs.

ALGER HISS
As he talked to press

When in April the United Nations Conference was held in San Francisco, Hiss was named temporary secretary general, and later secretary of the Preparatory Commission, which was the bridge between the San Francisco Conference and the initial U. N. session. The Preparatory Commission was dissolved when the secretariat for the U. N.'s General Assembly was chosen.

Succeeded Dr. Butler

Early in 1946 Hiss served for a month as a principal adviser to the United States delegation to the U. N. General Assembly. Upon his return he continued his work with the Office of Special Political Affairs until the end of the year, when he was elected president of the Carnegie Endowment for Internation Peace, succeeding the late Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. John Foster Dulles was elected chairman of the board at the same time.

Hiss, a slender 6-footer with blue eyes and wavy brown hair, and a rather musical voice, has an ingratiating, youthful charm that is said by some to conceal a shrewd, coldly analytical intellect.

He is interested in ornithology and enjoys camping and outdoor sports, when he has time for them.

Broken Homes, VD Increasing Everywhere, Doctors Show

London, Aug. 18 (NYHT).—Breakdown of marriages throughout the world is on the increase, the International Congress on Mental Health was told today. One reason given was the growing independence of women.

Dr. Edward F. Griffith, consultant to Britain's Marriage Guidance Council, said the rate of breakdown marriage was now about 25 per cent. He added that in 1900 there were 500 divorces and separation cases recorded in Britain and that this year the figure will be about 50,000.

One in four women married in Britain today is pregnant before marriage he said. He told the delegates the rates of illegitimacy, abortion and venereal diseases are on the increase. These trends, he declared, reflect the general feeling of insecurity among the people.

Dr. Griffith said the answer to increasing divorce is "marriage preparation" and sex education in the schools.

Dr. John M. Murray, professor of clinical psychiatry, Boston University, told reporters later that political unrest is contributing to emotional insecurity and creating marriage disharmony.

Many women in the United States, Dr. Murray said, have lost sight of the fact that "woman's role is to have babies and rear babies . . ."

Committee Seeking Lease

The committee's investigators now are seeking the lease Hiss said he gave Chambers for the years 1934 and 1935, according to Robert Stripling, chief counsel to the committee. Stripling, who was present at the dramatic hotel room meeting, described it to reporters yesterday and related what steps had been taken since.

The real estate firm through which Hiss said the apartment was sublet has been contacted, Stripling said, without uncovering the lease. Committee investigators, he said, now are patiently checking other real estate companies.

In spite of Miss' statement, Chambers denied ever using the "George Crosley" alias, Stripling said. He said Chambers, now a senior editor of Time magazine, insisted that he has was known to Hiss as "Carl" during the period he claimed Hiss gave him information of value to the Soviets.

Stripling said the hotel room meeting would be acted out by the principles again here August 25 hearing.

Hiss Enters First

As he described it, Hiss was brought into the room first and Chambers then entered and sat at the right of the former State Department officer. Hiss asked that Chambers say a few words so he could identify his voice if it was familiar.

Chambers read a few paragraphs from the magazine Newsweek but Hiss said he was unable to recognize his voice. Hiss then declared, Stripling said, that he would have to check with Chambers' dentist at Westminister, Md., before he could make a positive identification. Hiss explained, according to Stripling, that:

"The man he knew as Crosley had bad teeth. He said he didn't want to make the identification until he had checked Mr. Chambers' upper denture."

After some 15 minutes more of conversation, Stripling said, Hiss decided he did know Chambers after all, as George Crosley. Then both were subpenaed for the August 25 hearing.

Chambers Recalls Furnishings

It was understood that during the time in the hotel room Chambers described the Hiss home in some detail, recalling the pictures on its walls and the type and arrangement of the furniture. Hiss finally agreed that his and Chambers' families had lived together there for a few days and that he had sublet the place to Chambers.

Hiss and Chambers disagreed, however, on the circumstances of their first meeting, Stripling related. Chambers, he said, claimed he was "introduced to Hiss outside of his office," but Hiss declared Chambers visited him in his office and represented himself as a writer for "American Magazine, Cosmopolitan and other publications."

When he knew "Crosley," Hiss was reported to have said, he was legal assistant and public relations officer for the Nye Committee.

Chambers' Misunderstanding

Hiss first brought the name "George Crosley" into the investigation last Monday at a closed hearing, Stripling said. He related that Hiss then was "racking his mind" to recall the man who seemed to know so much about his apartment and finally jotted "George Crosley" on a pad.

Chambers almost missed the New York encounter because of a misunderstanding of the committee's instructions. He was just mounting the steps of the House Office Building Tuesday when he met several members of the committee coming down.

They explained to him then that the meeting had been arranged for New York and told him to go to the Commodore and await them there. Chambers did so and the meeting and disputed identification followed.

away, leaving instead a brief personal note sending Mrs. Kosenkina her best wishes.

Doctor Talks With Lomakin

Mrs. Kosenkina's physician, Dr. Grant Pennoyer, tonight said he had had a telephone conservation with Lomakin and offered to let him name a "surgeon" to talk with Pennoyer and other hospital doctors.

"I am very much worried about the possible lack of information the Russian consul may be getting," the doctor said. "I am making this offer from a humanitarian viewpoint."

He said Lomakin received the suggestion courteously, said he was anxious to confer personally with Dr. Pennoyer, and proposed a meeting tomorrow.

Pennoyer said he told Lomakin: "We want you to know that we are doing everything in God's name to help this woman. She is terribly, terribly sick. We had to put her under an oxygen tent today to make her feel better. As a result, although her pulse was 100 last night, it is down now, and her temperature is down a little.

Chepurnykh Is Angry

"Perhaps, not being from our country, you do not know just what we do. Do you know a surgeon, one who is fully qualified? If you will send him over we'll be glad to show him all our records and X-rays, to show the patient's condition and treatment, and consult with him."

Pennoyer said later he had not promised Lomakin that the visiting surgeon would be allowed to diagnose, prescribe or even examine Mrs. Kosenkina. At the consulate Chepurnyk, obviously angry that the Soviets had just now been invited to have doctors of their own choice visit the hospital, declared Lomakin was making arrangements to send "one, two, maybe three American doctors."

tarily sought to remain here and the State Department has said they can do so.

Action Studied on Lomakin

Marshall left open at his news conference the possibility that the American Government may ask Moscow to recall Jacob M. Lomakin, Soviet Consul General in New York, because of his part in the Kosenkina affair. The Secretary replied no comment when asked about Lomakin's future. A request for his recall on the ground that he is no longer acceptable in the United States is under consideration by the State Department.

Lomakin figured in another development here yesterday when New York Supreme Court Justice Samuel Dickstein conferred with Ernest Gross, Marshall's legal adviser, on a case involving the Soviet Consul. Dickstein said afterward that he has the power to declare Lomakin in contempt for failing to answer a writ directing him to produce Mrs. Kosenkina in court last week.

Lomakin claimed immunity from legal action and refused to answer the writ. Shortly afterward Mrs. Kosenkina leaped from the third floor consulate window. She finished up in a New York hospital, gravely injured but out of Lomakin's custody and under the protection of American police.

It was Lomakin who personally "rescued" Mrs. Kosenkina from anti-Communist Russians August 7 and took her to the New York consulate.

Marshall virtually forecast American rejection of all Russian arguments about the Samarines and Mrs. Kosenkina made in four formal Soviet protests.

Three were sent or carried to the State Department by Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin. The fourth, to give it special punch, was handed directly to the American Ambassador in Moscow, Walter Bedell Smith, by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov.

About the same time that Molotov moved into the dispute the Soviets unleashed a propaganda campaign at home, accusing the American Government of high handed denial of the rights of Soviet citizens.

Then last weekend the propaganda in Russia dropped almost to zero and instead the Russian whipped out the alleged "spy" record of American Naval Lieut Robert Derher. The State Department said that one was a complete frame-up, dating back to last April, and released at this time to cover Russian overpaying of the refugee school teacher cases.

Rare Paper—Or Copy—Lost

Police here yesterday began looking for a rarity or a phony—they didn't know which. And neither did the man who reported it missing.

Lost — left in a taxicab last Thursday — was a copy of the Ulster County Gazette of January 4, 1800, telling of the death of George Washington—or a reproduction of it.

It was reported missing by Whitney Tharin, 4403 14th st. nw., who said his brother, Ted Tharin of Columbia, S. C., had left it in the cab while en route to the Library of Congress to authenticate it.

The copy came down through the family from their grandfather, Tharin said, but the Library of Congress said last night the chances are it was merely a reproduction or imitation.

Since the 1870s, it was pointed out, at least a million copies of the famous issue of the Gazette, which was published at Kingston, N. Y., have turned up. But of these, according to the [illegible] only two have been found to be originals.

Army Urges World Spy System

By the United Press

The Army said yesterday the United States is "well behind" other major powers in building the world-wide spy and intelligence system needed for survival in an atomic age.

It said the Nation's continued security and freedom depends on the "strongest and most efficient intelligence and counter-intelligence service which American energy, ability and imagination can develop."

"It must be pushed rapidly. There is no time to waste."

The Army discussed intelligence, espionage and anti-spy activities in a pamphlet, "Armed Forces Talk," which is distributed to U. S. troops throughout the world.

It said the Nation "got by" in World Wars I and II by relying on its geographic isolation and on intelligence reports of its allies, primarily Great Britain. Its own "intelligence failures were often covered by operational successes," it said.

CAB Conference

Parley Today On Losses Of Airlines

The Nation's 25 domestic airlines will meet today with the Civil Aeronautics Board in a conference called to find out why the lines are losing money.

Basis of the conference, called by the CAB, is the fact that airlines it certifies lost 16 million dollars in the year ending last March 31. Conditions are believed to be no better now than last year.

One factor has been the slump in passengers this summer, with only 50 to 60 per cent of airplane seats occupied in July. That figure represented a decline from passenger traffic in May and June and July ordinarily is a month of heaviest air travel. The lines count on heavy summer business to make up for the lean winter months when bad weather cuts into flights and passenger revenues.

In addition, all airlines have been faced with greatly increased operating costs. American Airlines, for instance, has reported that its fuel costs alone will be four million dollars more this year than last.

The CAB partially met deficits by increasing rates for carrying mail. The Postoffice Department, however, has indicated it will call a halt.

Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder said yesterday there was nothing contrary to Treasury policy in his department's decision to permit further expansion of the Bank of America's already big facilities.

Snyder defended the Treasury action at a press conference after it had been noted that the Federal Reserve Board has investigated alleged monopolistic practices by Transamerica Corp., a holding company which controls about 25 per cent of the Bank of America.

The Reserve Board is reported to be planning a hearing on the monopoly charges.

Snyder said there had been no disagreement between his department and the board over the licensing of additional branches for the bank's West Coast empire.

He was backed up by Comptroller of the Currency Preston Delano, who approved licenses for the branches.

Delano said the branches were justified because of the "enormous" increase in California's population.

Snyder again denied reports that he intends to accept an executive job with the Bank of America when he leaves the Treasury.

"I have no plans to leave the Treasury," he said. "I have no commitments beyond my present connections. I have no promise of any kind after I leave the Treasury. I have no negotiations pending. I have no idea what my connection will be if and when I leave the Treasury.

"Can anybody twist that out of context?"

Rep. Martin Lays Inflation To Democratic Spending

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 18 (AP).—House Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.) today assailed President Truman's record and blamed inflation on what he called an "orgy of spending" by the Democratic Administration.

Martin expressed his views at a news conference after conferring with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee.

Hitting back at Mr. Truman's criticism of the GOP-controlled Congress on the inflation issue, Martin said the credit control law enacted at the special session was a start toward checking prices. But he remarked that to do any real good there would have to be a stop "to this wild spending of Government money—this orgy of spending," Martin added:

"The Truman Administration has never shown the slightest indication of wanting to check inflation. All they have done is try to check it in the headlines."

The GOP Congressional leader said he and Dewey had discussed the general political situation. Inflation and housing were among the specific topics, he said.

A reporter asked whether Martin would defend the record of the Eightieth Congress during the campaign.

"The Eightieth Congress doesn't need any defending," Martin shot back. "We are going to brag about the Eightieth Congress."

Inflation and housing were the two problems on which Mr. Truman placed the most emphasis at the extra session. In neither case did the Chief Executive get what he sought.

Referring to the housing bill Congress enacted, Martin said, "We are quite proud the people are getting some housing." He added that a program launched by Mr. Truman after the war produced "only blue prints."

Indonesians End Talks With Dutch After Shooting

Batavia, Java, Aug. 18 (AP).—The Indonesian Republic broke off today all negotiations with the Dutch delegation at a conference under the auspices of the United Nations Good Offices Commission.

The republican delegation notified the Good Offices Commission of the decision by letter, which said all documents of the republican security committee had been confiscated by Dutch police after a shooting incident at a republican "national home" here Monday night.

In addition, the letter said, Lieut. Col. Soewandar, who witnessed the shooting incident, in which a policeman and a republican youth were slain, is not permitted to leave the premises to attend a subcommittee session of the security committee.

Truman Plans to Campaign In All Sections, McGrath Says

important battleground north of the Mason-Dixon line.

Emerging from the President's office yesterday, Senator McGrath said that he and Mr. Truman had discussed campaign plans in detail. He said it probably was his last chance for such a talk before Mr. Truman starts out on a nine-day cruise aboard the yacht U.S.S. Williamsburg tomorrow.

To Visit "Every Section"

"So we covered the waterfront," McGrath said.

A reporter asked if it was true that the President intended to visit every State in the Union. McGrath said he doubted whether there would be time for that, but he added:

"The President is going to get into every section of the country."

McGrath declined to go into details, but it was evident from his remark that Mr. Truman would invade New York, home State of his chief rival, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, and also California, home State of Dewey's running mate, Gov. Earl Warren.

McGrath said that the President probably would be on the road a good part of the time after mid-September. How many trips he would make, he said, would depend on the demands of his office.

F. D. Roosevelt, jr., to Speak

Meantime, it was announced that Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., son of the late President Roosevelt, will deliver the keynote address at the Illinois Democratic State convention to be held in the Chicago Coliseum August 26.

Senator Carl A. Hatch, chairman of the Democratic Speakers' Bureau, also announced these additional speakers:

Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for Governor of Illinois; Paul H. Douglas, candidate for the United States Senate; Edward J. Barrett, candidate for Secretary of State, and John S. Boyle, candidate for State Attorney General.

Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, Mayor Martin H. Kennelly of Chicago and former Mayor Edward J. Kelly will attend the convention.

Bender Seeks Data on Lease Of U. S. Plant to Kaiser-Frazer cepted the WAA offer. The Kaiser-Frazer letter was signed by T. M. Price, vice president.

Kaiser-Frazer is scheduled to take over the plant September 1. The WAA had said Republic had given notice it would shut down the blast furnace August 31.

In Cleveland, Republic Steel promised to fight the surprise decision of WAA to lease the plant to Kaiser-Frazer with an option to buy. Automobile Maker Preston Tucker, another who has sought to obtain the plant, said in Chicago that he, too, would fight the disposal of the property to Kaiser-Frazer.

C. M. White, Republic Steel president, said he had wired the WAA protesting the action. White said a reported $1,248,000 yearly rental from Kaiser-Frazer for the plant was less than one half of the $2,500,000 the WAA had been demanding of Republic.

White also said he was asking House and Senate committees to review the WAA action. Larson in his release of terms of the disposal of the plant to Kaiser-Frazer made no mention of receipt of White's protest.

Within hours, Bender made public his letter to Larson calling for "the fullest possible information on this lease."

Bender said the House Executive Expenditures Subcommittee of which he is chairman has had the proposed disposition of the Cleveland property under investigation for some time.

He said the WAA action "raises a question as to the basis for the selection made among the parties competing for it, especially since I have been informally advised that the bid which was accepted was not the highest one offered."

Bender asked specifically that the WAA deal with these matters:

"Disclosure of all parties who had expressed interest in acquiring the plant, the amounts and details of the various bids submitted by all interested parties, and the basis upon which it was determined to avoid the lease to the Kaiser-Frazer Corp. in the light of these factors."

Hunt Named In Wyoming

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 18 (AP).—Gov. Lester C. Hunt and L. G. (Pat) Flannery are overwhelming choices of Wyoming Democrats to try for two seats in Congress held by Republicans.

The incumbents, Senator E. V. Robertson and Representative-at-large Frank Barrett, were unopposed for renomination in yesterday's primary.

Hunt rolled up nearly a 10-to-1 lead over his opponent, Carl Johnson, Cheyenne accountant, and Flannery had nearly twice as many votes as two opponents combined.

Democratic leaders expressed elation that the total Democratic vote cast slightly exceeded the total GOP vote for the first time in 10 years. Some 50,000 eligible voters didn't go to the polls, however, as only local legislative contests stirred up other interests.

With only returns missing from small, out-of-the-way precincts, these were the vote totals reported from 561 of the 681 precincts:

Democrats — Total, 22,154; for United States Senator, Hunt, 20,006, Johnson, 2149; for Representative, Flannery, 12,996; Joe McGowan of Cheyenne 5526; Sidney G. Kornegay of Cheyenne, 1860.

Republicans—Total, 21,419; Robertson, 21,419; Barrett, 21,413.

Alexandria Gazette Backs Dixiecrat Slate

The 164-year-old Alexandria Gazette, which claims to be the oldest daily newspaper in the United States, indorsed editorially yesterday the Dixiecrat slate for President and Vice President.

C. C. Carlin, jr., editor and owner, said it would be the first time since Thomas Jefferson founded the Democratic Party that the Gazette had failed to support the Democratic nominees.

Carlin is a former chairman of the Alexandria City Democratic Executive Committee.

The Gazette's editorial indorsing the Dixiecrat candidates, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina for President, and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi for Vice President, charged the Truman Democrats had "misappropriated" the Democratic Party's "honorable name."

"After over 150 years as a Democratic newspaper because we believed in the principles for which the Democratic Party has always stood," the editorial said, "we have no intention of abandoning those principles simply because the Truman Misdeal, Uncivil Rights Party has misappropriated an honorable name."

It continued:

"We will go to the polls in November with a clear conscience and without holding our nose and vote for the best men on the best ticket and we hope and believe that you will do likewise."

U. S., Canada Have General Plan for Military Bases

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 18 (AP).—Brooke Claxton, Canadian Minister of Defense, said today general plans for joint United States and Canadian military bases already have been worked out satisfactorily.

At a news conference Claxton said the details of such plans still remained to be threshed out by experts of both countries.

The Defense Minister is here for Ogdensburg's bicentennial celebration.

Claxton said "standardization of arms by the United States and Canada is more common than most people believe." He said during World War II Canadian factories produced United States models of radar, other electrical equipment and smokeless shells.

He Tells Illinois Group Choice Is '40-Cent Cattle' or Slump With GOP

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 18 (AP).—Senator Barkley (D., Ky.) today said farmers must choose in November between a Democratic administration with "40-cent cattle and 30-cent hogs" and a Republican regime with lower farm prices.

The Democratic Vice Presidential nominee spoke on the "Democratic Day" program of the Illinois State Fair. It was his opening campaign talk.

Gov. Earl Warren of California, the Republican Vice Presidential candidate, will have an opportunity to answer Barkley from the same platform Thursday.

Barkley said that if farmers vote Republican they will take a chance of "putting the economy of this Nation, including agriculture, back into the hands of those whose short-sightedness brought you to the brink of disaster a decade and a half ago."

Mentioning that cattle then sold for 4 cents a pound and hogs for 3, he added:

"We have the right to ask you not to allow some temporary prejudice or inconvenience under which you may have suffered as a result of total war to divert your attention from the great advancement made by American agriculture and the whole American economy during the 16 years of Democratic administration."

Barkley credited President Truman with having halted an effort by congressional Republicans to "destroy" farm cooperatives.

The Kentucky Senator said Republicans had tried in 1947 to curtail the soil conservation program but had been balked by protests from the farmers.

Fired Employe Is Accused of Attack to Kill

A Fussell-Young Ice Cream Co. truck driver, who had been fired by the company, was charged yesterday with attempting to murder the company's vice president.

The driver was identified by Montgomery County police as Reginald I. Smith, 42, of 4339 Harrison st. nw.

In an encounter on the front lawn at the home of the vice president, Walter E. Carter, 4610 Morgan dr., Chevy Chase, Carter said he pinned Smith to the ground and took away his pistol.

Carter swore out warrants charging Smith with assault with intent to murder, assault and battery and disturbing the peace.

2500 Workers Idle At Atomic Plant

Repeal Urged

Taft-Hartley Act Hit By Tobin

Maurice J. Tobin, new Secretary of Labor, yesterday called for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law on grounds it will promote "bootlegging and under the table dealing" between labor and management.

He told his first news conference that he objects to the labor act because of its ban on the century-old closed shop and restrictions on political activities by labor unions.

The former Massachusetts Governor also said he would do "everything possible" to help President Truman win in the November election.

Tobin added that he will make his first public address at a Labor Day rally in Akron, Ohio, on the same program with AFL President William Green. He said he will have a lot to say publicly about the drastic cuts in Labor Department funds voted by the Republican-controlled Congress.

He said he is against the ban on the closed shop, which requires employers to hire union members, because it prevents management from including it in a contract if they want to.

"The closed shop has been in existence for more than a century," he said. "It was relied upon by employers as well as employes to create stable conditions of employment and to obtain and maintain an adequate supply of qualified workers in skilled trades and occupations.

"This ban is certain to result in a lot of bootlegging and under the table dealing."

He said restrictions on the use of union funds for political purposes prevents workers from taking an effective position to protect their economic security.

Los Alamos, N. Mex., Aug. 18 (AP).—Workmen who left their jobs for a so-called "vacation" stalled new construction and maintenance at the Los Alamos atomic project today.

An estimated 2500 employes of five contracting firms were idled. Labor spokesmen insisted, however, that there was no strike and workers were cautioned against demonstrating.

Leaders of the movement said no union officials were involved but a dispute prompting the walkout probably would now be referred to union representatives.

Speakers at a forenoon meeting of the workers said their protests were directed against Brown and Root Contracting Co. of Houston, Tex. They claimed the company had refused to deal with unions and had imported nonunion labor from Texas.

Representatives of Brown and Root declined comment. There also was no comment from Los Alamos officials of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Parleys Resumed In Harvester Strike

Chicago, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Representatives of the striking CIO United Auto Workers resumed negotiations today with officials of the International Harvester Co.

Commissioner Glenn C. Fleshman of the Federal Conciliation Service called negotiators into conference after the union walked out of a meeting yesterday charging the company had "welched" on its agreements.

UAW employes at seven Harvester plants in six cities have walked off their jobs. The union

Morrell Says 600 Returned to Jobs

Ottumwa, Iowa, Aug. 18 (U.P.) John Morrell & Co., involved in a wage contract dispute with the CIO United Packinghouse Workers, said more than 600 workers reported to their jobs today at their plant here, where the union charged a "lockout" was in progress.

The victim, Isadore Landau, 54, of Brooklyn, was pronounced dead by an ambulance surgeon outside the building at 8th ave. and 37th st. in Manhattan.

N. Y. Shipbuilding Corp. Gets 32 Millions for 3 Liners

The Maritime Commission yesterday awarded a 32 million dollar contract to the New York Shipbuilding Corporation of Camden, N. J., for three new passenger-cargo liners for round-the-world service.

The ships are the second big installment of the Commission's drive to modernize the merchant fleet—and build in national defense features—with 178 million dollars in subsidy funds.

The vessels will go into the service of American President Lines. Their cost will be $10,671,000 a piece, with the Government paying a 44.05 per cent subsidy. The Government also will pay for the national defense features.

The new ships will be larger and faster than the original "C-3" vessels in the President Lines' around-the-world service. They will be 536 feet, overall and will have a speed of 19 knots, the Commission said. Each will displace about 19,600 tons. Each ship is designed to carry 188 passengers under the present contract; plans will be changed, however, to provide space for 228 and a crew of 162.

The first contract awarded under the merchant fleet speedup was a 50 million dollar contract to Bethlehem Steel Corp. for the building of two passenger ships for American Export Lines. Bids have been requested also on a proposed 980-foot "superliner" for United States Lines.

49 Scientists To Be Honored For Work Here

Both the Army and Navy will honor 49 scientists living in Greater Washington for their contributions to victory in World War II.

A joint ceremony will be held for that purpose at 3 p. m. today at the Pentagon, it was announced yesterday by the Potomac River Naval Command and Headquarters, Military District of Washington.

Four members of the applied physics laboratory at Johns Hopkins University, all residents of Silver Spring, will receive presidential certificates of merit along with Allen S. Clarke of the Clarke Instrument Corp., also of Silver Spring. They are:

Dr. F. T. McClure, Dr. Alexander Kossiakoff, Dr. William Hinckley Avery and Henry H. Porter.

Forty-five others will be awarded Army-Navy certificates of appreciation.

Effort to Fire Russian Embassy In Havana Fails

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 18 (U.P.)—Unidentified persons early today made an unsuccessful attempt to set the Russian Embassy afire.

Police reported that a bottle filled with gasoline was ignited and hurled against the building from a speeding automobile at about 1 a. m.

The bottle fell and burned in the gardens surrounding the embassy. No damage or injuries were reported.

Occupants of the car, whose registration was not known, also fired several shots into the air as they passed the building, in the exclusive Vedado suburb.

Reported Taft Action Rapped By Typo Union

Milwaukee, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—The AFL International Typographical Union convention today passed a resolution condemning Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) for an alleged attempt to urge contempt of court action against the union.

The convention rejected a proposal which some delegates argued would have excluded varitypers from membership. Varitypers have supplanted union typesetters on Chicago's five struck newspapers.

The resolution, passed unanimously, charged Taft with an "unwarranted invasion" of the affairs of the executive branch of the Government.

It quoted an article in the New York Times August 14 to the effect that Taft summoned lawyers for the National Labor Relations Board to his office and urged them to file contempt proceedings against the union.

According to the resolution, the NLRB lawyers were summoned "in order that the Ohio Senator and newspaper publishers might lecture the law enforcement agencies with reference to their duties in connection with a case pending in Federal Court."

The resolution charged additionally that "this undue interest of Senator Taft in the affairs of the International Typographical Union was reportedly instigated by Chicago publishers and their representatives."

It called upon President Truman to "investigate the matter and take suitable action to prevent a recurrence . . ."

Hiring Halls of Seamen Held Illegal in Decision by NLRB sonnel. The raise is retroactive to July 16.

The terms of the agreement were the same as those reached last week between nine Atlantic Coast operators and the Seafarers International Union (AFL).

The board, headed by Paul M. Herzog, found the union and seven of its officers guilty of two unfair labor practices under the Taft-Hartly Act:

1. Trying to cause four tanker companies to discriminate against nonunion men. The board said the union did this by insisting upon a contract continuing the existing hiring halls.

2. Refusing to bargain in good faith. The board said the union did this by insisting on an illegal arrangement and refusing to enter into any agreement until the arrangement had been accepted.

It was the first time the five-man board has found any union guilty of those offenses—though NLRB trial examiners have done so in recommendations to the board.

In fact it was only the third ruling issued by the board against a union under the unfair labor practice sections of the Taft-Hartley Law, now one year old.

Board Member J. Copeland Gray dissented from the decision in one respect, though concurring in the main findings. He held the union actions to be also a violation of the Taft-Hartley provision which prohibits a union from restraining or coercing employes in the exercise of their right to keep out of union activities.

A trial examiner, Howard Myers, who held hearings in the case, had also found a violation of this provision, along with the other two provisions.

But a four-man majority of the board dismissed the coercion charge which had been brought by NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham. They laid down the principle that neither refusal to bargain nor a strike for an illegal objective is necessarily restraint and coercion of employes.

This was the board's first interpretation of the meaning of the coercion provision. It has an important bearing in other industries besides shipping.

Outlay of 28% Tops Income

ilies earning more than $3000 yearly who overspent their income. About one family in every four was in the red, compared with one in every five during 1946.

Families in the higher income brackets—$5000 a year and above—accounted for about 80 per cent of the total net savings in spite of the sharp increase in overspending. Seven out of 10 families in the less-than $2000 bracket were safely in the black. But the other three brought the average down so far that families in the income group as a whole spent 13 per cent more money than they earned.

The board said the 1947 savings pattern was "not unusual for a year of high durable goods productions." The most pronounced change, between 1946 and 1947, was the large increase in the number of deficit families at middle and high income levels.

Consumer credit, now scheduled for more rigid controls by the board 30 days hence, was not the "prime form" of overspending. Such credit was "important," the board said, but most deficit families tapped their own bank accounts, savings bonds and other liquid assets.

Life insurance premiums were the most common type of savings. Nearly three-fourths of all families saved money in life insurance.

At Fort Meade

D. C. MPs Triple 1947 Strength

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Aug. 18.—The District's 163d Military Police Battalion settled down to two weeks of intensive training here today, three times as strong as it was a year ago.

After moving out Sunday, the battalion, 300 strong, spent most of yesterday settling down and straightening out equipment. It is short no essentials now except a pair of 14½ EE combat boots for husky John F. Thomas of College Park, Md., a freshman at the University of Maryland.

The battalion arrived here with its equipment complete as to quantities but not altogether adequate in sizes. This deficiency, except for the outsize combat boots, was made up by trading sizes with Second Army.

Training today included small unit drill, ju jitsu and gas mask drill with two trips through a building filled with tear gas. The battalion entered so wholeheartedly into the spirit of training that two of its members were sent to the station hospital as a result of the ju jitsu class.

Colonel Enthusiastic

Lieut. Anthony Censabella of 601 18th sa. nw. was admitted for treatment of a wrenched back, with the expectation he would be out tomorrow. Pvt. Richard E. Severe of 4217 Jefferson st., Hyattsville, Md., was returned to duty after a strained shoulder was treated.

Colonel Weber, a veteran of infantry combat in Italy, was enthusiastic over the Caliber of the troops.

"These young men," he said, "are the highest type I have run into. The way they catch on and cooperate is wonderful."

Consolidated Mess Used

Although the battalion brought along a full complement of mess gear, it hasn't been needed. Officers and men at in a consolidated mess operated by the battalion's own cooks and KPs under supervision of the Cooks and Bakers School here. They use compartmented metal trays instead of field messkits.

When camp ends August 29, the company with the best all-around military record will be awarded an "honor company" streamer to be attached to its guidon. Three cups also will be awarded for the winning teams in volley ball, softball and track events in the battalion league. Each company will play every other company twice during the two weeks.

The United States attorney's office here filed motions yesterday to dismiss eleventh-hour appeals brought by two convicted robbery-murderers scheduled to die in District Jail Friday.

They are Reginald J. Wheeler, 28, and Jesse James Patton, 23, who killed Maurice L. Bernstein, 52, on June 5, 1946, during a hold-up.

Both men were unsuccessful this week in habeas corpus actions based upon an alleged illegality in their cases. In denying the habeas corpus writs, the District Court did, however, grant the two men a "custody-stay" order. Jail authorities said that because of this order, which remains in effect until appeals are disposed of, the executions will be delayed until a go ahead signal is given by the courts.

Assistant United States Attorney John D. Lane asked that the appeals and the custody-stay order be dismissed. He said there is no merit whatsoever in the theory by which the men said their case was illegally handled. The defendants' contention is this:

After Patton and Wheeler were convicted of murder in the commission of a felony, their cases were taken to the United States Court of Appeals. The defense attorneys contend that the chief judge of that court must sit on all appeals. He did not do so in this case.

Lane contends, however, that there is nothing in the law here which compels the chief judge to hear a case himself.

No date was set immediately for court action on the motion to dismiss. Thus, the way was paved for a motion either by the Government or the defense to set a new date for the executions.

Policeman Foils Car Theft; Suspect Takes His Gun, Flees

Police were searching last night for a husky fugitive who stole a policeman's revolver after failing in an attempt to steal a car.

Private Louis Deeb, 28, of 1204 Orren st. ne. told superiors at the Thirteenth Precinct station that he found the man tampering with a parked car in the 2100 block of Wyoming ave. nw. early yesterday.

On being discovered, the suspect broke and ran. Private Deeb stopped him with a command to halt, punctuated by a shot fired into the air.

But as the suspect was being led off to a call box he struggled with the policeman, this time wresting his service revolver and yelling:

"One more step, copper, and I'll kill you with your ow ngun." Private Deeb stopped, and the suspect fled toward Rock Creek Park.

The policeman followed for about 10 blocks, to 22d and S sts. nw., where the fugitive disappeared into the park.

The fugitive was described as "a dark skinned Negro, about 25 years old, 6 feet tall, weighing 190 pounds and wearing dark brown clothes and a brown hat.

The car he had been trying to start by crossing its ignition wires belongs to Dr. Hector Castro of 3400 Garfield st. nw., son of the Salvadorean Ambassador.

Thousands See Farm Made Over

servation practices were demonstrated. Five hundred men—whose time could conservatively be valued at $1000 an hour, worked eight hours with high-cost machinery. The dairy barn alone, with its full equipment of stanchions, silo, storage shed, drinking fountains, etc., is valued at $10,000.

Among the events that drew the greatest attention were the placing of contour fencing—600 rods of it—by machinery. The rapid construction of more than a mile of farm roads through the site; the demonstration of planting trees both by machine and by hand in a reforestration project in the farm woodlot, and the rapid repairing of farm buildings, drew their share of interest.

25 Tons of Fertilizers

Almost 100 tons of lime and 25 tons of fertilizers were spread to replenish the long-farmed soil. Almost a ton of grass seed was sown to rebuild the permanent pastures, and hundreds of pounds of grain seed were put into the ground.

Altogether it is estimated that labor and materials donated will reach $20,000.

At nightfall only two of the planned projects had not been completed. All the fence had not been built and a small pond was delayed when a drag-line became mired down and had to be pulled out by bulldozers. But this work all will be done within a few days.

The farm has seen a constant stream of visitors in the last two weeks. Last Sunday it was estimated that upward of 500 cars had stopped to view the site.

Mrs. Thrasher, who has farmed the land with only the aid of her two children, George Edward, 17, and Jan Virginia, 15, since the death of her husband three years ago, was true to the instincts of a real farmer, as she explained the project to reporters.

Chooses Barn Over Kitchen

She had been offered a modern kitchen—with modernization of the interior of her home—but had turned it down. She thought, she said, it would be much better to get a model dairy farm for her 33 Holsteins and Guernseys, who earn her livelihood.

"I couldn't have both," she explained.

Mrs. Thrasher is convinced that the work done by 500 men and 150 machines will begin paying dividends in the next year.

She had a wheat failure on her farm this year, and her hay crop, as usual, was poor. She kept her 35 cows going by buying heavily of expensive dairy feed. During the year she sold 225,000 pounds of milk on the Washington market. This brought her about $9000.

Next year, with the vast amount of work done on her wheat acres and her hay pastures, she expects to reduce the cost of producing that milk.

Big Event of 30 Years

The day was the greatest event in Maryland, insofar as interest and crowds are concerned, in the last 20 years, Addison Snyder of the Extension Service of the University of Maryland said. Snyder has been at all Maryland events since he came to the Maryland University in 1927.

The number of persons who tramped over the land, and watched the men at work, was variously estimated from 40,000 to 60,000. Final figures of the number of cars that passed down the country road from Jefferson will not be made known until the State Roads Commission opens its counters—it had two on the highway. But at noon manual counters had clocked off more than 12,000. The cars came and departed all day long, with the parking specs—planned for 12,000—filled much of the time.

"The very presence of this great assemblage of people," Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland told the crowd at noon, "is evidence that our citizenry, in all walks of life and occupations, is alive to the urgency of combatting the greatest enemy attacking our natural resources, erosion of our life-sustaining soil.

"Before the end of the month, this story of cooperation will have been carried to all sections of the globe by our overseas press and radio, including the facilities of the World-Wide Broadcasting Foundation and the State Department's 'Voice of America.'

"The story of this face-lifting operation will also be carried by the civil affairs division of the Army to the occupied areas of Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea, as a specific example of democracy in action.

To Combat Propaganda

"Such an example will help to combat some of the distorted propaganda which certain countries disseminate regarding life in this country.

"For our own people, I am sure this demonstration will convince even the most skeptical of the numerous benefits to be derived from adoption of proved soil conservation practices on our farms; convince them of the increase in the standard of living which such practices will bring about."

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan warned the listeners that, without conservation such as was being demonstrated on the Thrasher farm, in another 150 years this country will be "unable to feed ourselves adequately."

"Even after the conservation programs of the last 16 years, half the cropland we use is still subject to erosion in some degree," he said.

"As for our forests, the rate of saw timber drain is one and a half times the rate of growth.

Recognized in 1935

"We have been living off our reserves of land and forests. We did not really recognize soil erosion as a national problem which must be attacked on a national basis until 1935.

"Today there are about 200 soil conservation districts. They include about three fourths of all the Nation's farms and ranches.

"More than 100 million acres are now under complete soil and water conservation treatment.

"About three million farms, including more than 300 million acres, are now carrying out one of more conservation practices under the agricultural conservation program."

More than 30 visitors were sent from other States to watch yesterday's show. Their mission was to study the demonstration with a view of staging one like it in their own communities.

Fairfax Weighs Trailer Parks

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday deferred action on a proposal to triple the present license fee for trailer parks pending a study of license laws in other counties in the Washington Metropolitan area.

The decision to delay action came after attorneys representing a group of trailer park operators asked that they be given time to investigate licensing practices which might afford the county a key to "fair and equitable" license laws. A hearing on the license proposal was reset for September 15.

The increase, which would boost license rates from $25 to $75 annually for each trailer lot in the county, has been indorsed by approximately 1000 property owners, who signed a petition presented to the supervisors yesterday. The petitioners contended present trailer park rates leave the burden of financing schools and other facilities on permanent property owners, although trailer dwellers are granted the same privileges as established home owners.

Under the proposal under consideration by the supervisors, the increased license cost would be passed on by trailer park operators to the occupants of trailer lots within their parks, in the form of trailer parking fees.

The Magic Wand of Agriculture

By Roger Farquhar
Post Reporter

Jefferson, Md., Aug. 18.—An estimated 50,000 persons watched an agricultural epic unfold here today on the 175-acre farm of Mrs. Nellie V. Thrasher.

They came by truck and by limousine and were clad in overalls and expensive frocks. Two streams of traffic were jammed bumper to bumper for five hours from Frederick to this quiet farming community of 500 persons —a distance of 10 miles.

On Mrs. Thrasher's dairy farm nestling against the Catoctin Mountains, the throng gaped at giant equipment that changed the surface of the earth.

The work of a comprehensive 5-year conservation program was done in the 8-hour period, dramatizing the urgency of conserving land and natural resources before they waste away.

The crowd kept moving, watching the numerous activities all over the farm. Thousands walked half-way up the Catoctin Mountain to see a reforestation project and a sawmill cutting fence posts and lumber.

Sponsored by Residents

Conservation experts who directed the gigantic undertaking sponsored by Frederick County residents were overjoyed.

Edward M. Davis, director of the United States Soil Conservation Service, described the affair as "the largest agricultural event ever to take place in the East."

"If we had tried to stage such an event 10 years ago, people would have laughed at us and 100 persons wouldn't have attended," he said. "It proves that people are interested in conservation."

Amateur photographers with both still and movie cameras were in abundance. Thousands of feet of film were exposed when Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, and Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan rode from project to project in a canary colored convertible.

Also on hand was Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland

Pictures Taken From Air

Reporters from wire services and newspapers in half a dozen States were present. Newsreel cameras were everywhere, and major radio networks recorded the event. A Navy dirigible and numerous planes flew over the farm taking pictures.

Mrs. Thrasher spoke briefly during formal ceremonies.

"I want to thank all you good people for what you have done," the widow declared heartily. Later she posed happily for pictures with Governor Lane and Secretary Brannan.

The speeches were made against a background of the noisy machinery, which continued working at breakneck speed. The Governor said conservation would enable future generations to enjoy "a rich, natural heritage."

Secretary Brannan declared: "We see here today a demonstration of the American people's awareness that the land is important and that its conservation is essential to our continued well-being."

Among the most interested spectators were diplomats from almost every embassy and legation in Washington. One of them, Zaw Win, First Secretary of the Burmese Embassy, said he was "bewildered" by the feverish activity of the 500 workmen and 150 machines.

Army and Navy writers were there to collect material for use in foreign countries, and the story will also be told to the world by the State Department and representatives of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Administration.

60 Troopers Direct Traffic

Sixty Maryland State troopers, who directed the more than 12,000 cars at the farm, were brought in from all over the State. National Guardsmen of Company A, 115th Infantry, assisted with traffic. A detail of soldiers roamed the farm with 22 "walkie-talkies" reporting progress to the headquarters tent, where it was relayed to the public over the loud speaking system.

Participating in a flag ceremony was Paul J. Wiedorfer of Baltimore, the only living Maryland resident to hold the Congressional Medal of Honor. He was awarded the medal after he single-handedly knocked out two German machine-gun nests, killed three Germans and captured 20 others.

Food and soft drinks were dispensed from 23 concessions. Officials said most of the 80,000 bottles of pop and 50,000 hot dogs ordered were consumed.

Among the oldest visitors was C. Upton Grossnickel, 92, a retired Myersville, Md. farmer. He was accompanied by his brother-in-law, John Leatherman, 95, also of Meyersville.

Washington Grows Up

On the theory that what goes up must come down, some of our good citizens have been waiting patiently for Washington to shrink back to normal after its wartime bloat of population. For a time their expectations seemed to be justified. Between 1944, when the Census Bureau placed the District's population at a new peak of 894,000, and 1946, there was a shrinkage of 50,000. The Capital has always managed to shake off a good many newcomers at the close of every war. But with its most transient fringe disposed of, it has then invariably settled down to consolidation of its gains. And that is what is again taking place. Since 1946 the District has increased its population by 18,000 and is now scurrying about the business of making both its wartime and peacetime newcomers as comfortable as possible.

By now it should be obvious to everyone that Washington will never again be the city it was before 1940. It has taken on two decades of growth in eight years, in addition to enormously expanding its suburbs in Virginia and Maryland, and somehow its accommodations and institutions must be adjusted to this sudden increase of size and activity. To yearn for or plan for a return to the good old days before World War II would be almost as futile as to seek a return to the pre-Civil War era. Washington has grown up. Its budget, its institutions, its business establishments, its housing and the thinking of the people cannot be too rapidly adjusted to this inescapable fact.

Harry Dexter White

Chairman Thomas of the Un-American Activities Committee must now be convinced as to the truthfulness of at least one portion of Harry White's testimony before him last Friday. When Mr. White took the stand at his own request to answer the charges concerning him made in public hearings by Elizabeth T. Bentley and Whittaker Chambers, he passed a note privately to Mr. Thomas in which he said: "I am recovering from a severe heart attack. I would appreciate it if the chairman would give me 5 or 10 minutes rest after each hour." Mr. Thomas took it upon himself to read the note aloud, expressing skepticism about its plea. "I did not intend that this note should be read aloud," said Mr. White. "I do not know any reason why it should be public that I am ill." The discourtesy and the disregard for considerations of privacy revealed by this incident are fair commentaries on the procedure of the committee.

Mr. White's work in the Government, to which he came from a university appointment, was done chiefly at the Treasury, finally as Assistant Secretary. He was Mr. Morgenthau's alter ego. A monetary economist of brilliant endowment, he suffered from an arrogance of mind and a brusque way of talking which estranged many persons, especially his opposites in other countries. He and Lord Keynes had battles-royal at Bretton Woods over the establishment of the Monetary Fund. Keynes, fearing unemployment, wanted the Fund to be based upon mutual help; White, expecting early stabilization, wanted an over-all authority to maintain it. White's ideas prevailed, though the expectations of both economists proved wrong, and the Fund has not worked out exactly as planned because of the long and continuing spell of instability.

Mr. White could be called the Father of the World Bank as well as the Monetary Fund, and became the first American director of the Monetary Fund after its establishment, where his astringent personality was just as pronounced as it was at Bretton Woods. Not that he was ill-intentioned or was ever thought so by his associates, but he had a pride of opinion, and, in addition, was somewhat emotional. His personality imposed itself to such an extent on the unsophisticated Secretary Morgenthau that Mr. White was influential in nonmonetary operations of Government. He was undoubtedly responsible, for instance, for the Morgenthau Plan for the treatment of Germany which, had it been accepted, would have resulted in such a deindustrialization as to make Germany to all intents and purposes an agrarian economy.

These are the monuments to Mr. White's career, and they certainly lend no credence to the terrible charge that he was playing the Russian game in his 13-year service with the Government of the United States. Soviet Russia has nothing to do with either the World Bank or the Monetary Fund. Why? Because they are capitalistic conceptions, destined to return a war-torn world to a world economy based upon free enterprise and multilateral trading. These are just the opposite systems to that on which Soviet Russia is operating. Bilateral agreements are the methods by which Moscow does business with the outside world—the system of swaps of particular goods with particular countries—and, of course, Moscow is dedicated to collectivism, not private enterprise. As for the Morgenthau Plan, Soviet policy is aimed at developing a strong Germany as an appendage to the Soviet Union.

To the charge of fostering and willfully giving classified information to a Soviet spy ring, Mr. White offered the only defense open to him under the procedures followed by the Un-American Activities Committee—an unequivocal denial under oath. "The principles in which I believe and by which I live," he told the committee, "make it impossible for me ever to do a disloyal act or anything against the interests of our country." Mere denial is, of course, a weak riposte to sensational allegations, but it was entered with no diminution in the force and mordancy which were part of his character.

Mr. White stayed in character in other parts of his testimony on his accused associates. He showed he was no fair weather friend, and he asserted friendship forthrightly even for persons under deep suspicion. When Representative Thomas tried to make him call Gregory Silvermaster a Communist, Mr. White replied firmly: "You cannot erase seven or eight years of friendship with a man that way. Unless I see evidence, unless the court declares he is, and until they prove he is guilty, I believe he is innocent." No doubt many of his friends will feel the same way about Harry White, and others who did not know him will repudiate the unfair and un-American manner in which he was treated.

The Cracking Truce

The truce in Palestine is breaking down in a way that can no longer be ignored by the Security Council. Hitherto the U. N. mediator, Count Bernadotte, has been left to manage the situation while the Security Council turned to other matters of pressing import to world peace. But a problem that has been festering on years of neglect and conflict cannot be left to one man to dispose of. The trouble focuses on Jerusalem, the City of Peace. Settle that, and maybe some progress could be made to bring together Jew and Arab elsewhere than in Jerusalem, where, incidentally, the record of Arab-Jew amity goes back centuries.

Under the November 29 plan of the General Assembly, Jerusalem was to be subject to an international regime. But the mediator, with or without authority, advanced an alternative suggestion that the Holy City should be Arab-controlled, with a sort of autonomy for the 100,000 Jews. The notion of letting Jerusalem become a Moslem city, as a sort of rival Abdullah center of Pan-Islamism to Mecca and Medina under Ibn Saud, was fantastic, but the Christian world failed to register either comment or protest. This was perhaps the most extraordinary of the reactions to this item in the truce proposal. The leaders of the Christian world had hailed the General Assembly's resolution on Jerusalem with a traditional and religious feeling of gratification. No matter what they thought of the remainder of the partition plan, this had a good reception, especially in Britain. But when the Bernadotte alternative came out, they were silent, though there must have been quite a commotion in the grave of Richard the Lion Hearted and of the other crusaders down the storied years of Jerusalem's history.

The Jews, however, did not conceal their hostility to the Bernadotte plan. The Holy City, sacred to Jew and Christian alike, to be put in the hands of a Bedouin chief, especially after his Arab Legion had made the Old City, as the pictures in Life testified, a field of desolation! The Jews insisted that the suggestion was unacceptable. And there was a practical side to their objection. Jerusalem is not only their religious capital, it is their cultural center, and, moreover, is tied to the coastal areas of Israel for food and water. Jerusalem separated from Israel is like Berlin separated from the Western zones of Germany. The Latrun Road is a life and death artery which the Arab Legion blocked till the Israelis built an alternative route. Till the Israelis could get through, their fellows in Jerusalem were starving, and, even when relief came, the water supply was still a problem. In the period of the mandate the British had connected the Holy City with water lifted and carried to Jerusalem through a series of intermediate pumping stations. All were in Israeli hands when the truce came, save that at Latrun. And this was blown up last week—after it had been turned over to the United Nations' mediators. The act intensified the bitterness in Jew-Arab relations in Jerusalem, and undoubtedly helped the explosion which is now reported.

Exactly what is taking place is anybody's guess, for experience has shown that reports from Palestine are part fiction, part fact. One of the Arab rulers' difficulties is that they never kept their people aware of anything but huge Arab victories which didn't exist. Some of them want peace, especially Abdullah, but are inhibited by this old propaganda of victories all the way, and the disillusionment is making the Arab populations resentful. Then there is the troublous factor of mutual inter-Arab jealousy. A final difficulty is the inability of the Arab countries, by reason of their internal stresses and strains, to take any initiative; they are so weak, that left by themselves, they cannot help drifting along the negative. The situation requires the major powers not to leave things to stew in deterioration but to provide leadership by action and encouragement, if this tortured mess is ever to be settled.

Much has to be learned about the Arabs, especially in the Pentagon, where the fiction obtained for months that the Arabs would sweep the Jews into the Mediterranean. No construction of events could have been more awry. The real danger in the Middle East arises from the military vacuum that has been demonstrated, and, strategically, the recognition of such a vacuum should bestir the Pentagon to plead with the State Department for diplomatic action. Face the Arabs with a fact, and, realist rather than romantic as they are, they will accommodate themselves to it. In other words, give Israel de jure recognition, back its application for membership in the United Nations, and then the Arabs might seek to come to direct agreement with Israel in accordance with the November 29 resolution of the General Assembly. This is what Israel requests, and it is a necessary preliminary to a very real problem that is coming to the fore viz., the settlement of the Arab DP problem. This problem cannot be disposed of while the two parties are still in conflict, and the first approach should be through the agenda of peace talks with United Nations' mediators in attendance.

Ferguson Vs. Clark

The newspapers keep on saying that Senator Ferguson wants to see the loyalty file on William Remington. Yet, in a letter published on Sunday, he and his general counsel, Mr. William P. Rogers, rebuked this newspaper for so saying, insisting that all that was wanted was the employment record. In our own behalf we now know that the original request dated August 2 would warrant the interpretation that the Senator was seeking the confidential file. But on August 7, after his speech in the Senate hinting at the need of impeachment proceedings, he indited another letter toning down his request and spelling out the specific data he required. This request seemed, as we said on Sunday, quite reasonable. The question that puzzled the Ferguson Committee was why Remington should have held the positions he held while the FBI was investigating allegations against him of espionage. It was justifiable puzzlement. It equally justified a congressional request for enlightenment, though Mr. Clark turned this down, too. Now Senator Ferguson has urged a face-to-face talk with Attorney General Clark with the view of resolving their dispute, and the Attorney General has agreed.

There is something a little queer about the dispute, aside from any personal angle, which we cannot fathom. Senator Ferguson hints at it in his last letter. Quite rightly he points out the incongruity contained in the Clark suggestion that the hearings may have damaged the department's prosecution. The incongruity arises from the fact that the Administration says all the data have been known to the FBI and were not sufficent to justify indictments. Then the Senator adds, "If Remington or any other Government employe was kept in his job as part of the plan of a pending investigation, obviously no possible criticism could be directed at the loyalty program or the officials administering it on any such grounds." From the start this has always been an imponderable in the cases of the two Government employes retained in service. If proved, it would relieve the Government of any suspicion of stupidity. And it would explain the Attorney General's hint that the Ferguson hearings are damaging to the FBI's spy investigation.

Basing Point

The Supreme Court decision outlawing the basing point price system of the cement industry has already resulted in changes in the price policies of other industries, notably the steel industry, which recently decided to abandon its basing-point system for f. o. b. mill pricing. In view of the extensive and often serious industrial dislocations resulting, or likely to result, from abolition of the basing-point system, strong pressure is being exerted to secure an amendment to the antitrust laws to legalize the system.

Before adjournment, Congress accordingly appropriated funds for an investigation of the effect on business and consumers of the Supreme Court decision. Senator Capehart, who is chairman of the committee conducting the investigation, has now appointed an advisory committee consisting of outstanding representatives of industry, farm and labor leaders, and economists to assist the committee in its work. This appears to be a very wise move on his part. For the problem with which he is dealing is extremely complex. Experts hold diametrically opposed views concerning the advantages and defects of the basing-point system, making it extraordinarily difficult for a layman to pass judgment on the merits of the controversy.

Senator Capehart has recognized that difficulty by calling to his aid men with practical knowledge of the working of the basing-point system and economists who can throw light on the long-range effects of the system which permits producers to absorb freight charges as a means of meeting competition from plants nearer to the customers. If this practice of consultation were more common, a good deal of ill-conceived legislation based on inadequate knowledge of the subject covered might never see the light.

RED CLAY

This flesh, the prison of the soul,
Is wrought of earth and wind and sky,
And yet the red clay stains the whole
Which, lacking pinions, cannot fly.

Leaving the heavy chains it wore,
Bright winging to the stars.

Inflation "Pathology"

Mr. Keyserling, vice chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers whose letter appeared August 11, might consider that possibly the reason why some economists have refused to get wrought up by the whoop-la over prices during the past year or so is because they believe it unfounded, or even a little ridiculous. If Mr. Keyserling will take the trouble to look back over the records of past wars he will find something like the following "pathology" of price movement.

(1) An initial wartime advance (2) An immediate postwar boom (3) A reaction—mild or violent—and leveling off at levels well below the war or postwar peaks but well above the prewar starting points.

This was the history of the Civil War and World War I. It is now being roughly repeated for World War II, with this exception, however.

Prices in many lines have had no boom. Due to restraint on the part of producers, prices within their control are no higher now in relation to pre-World War II than they were after the 1920-21 collapse, in relation to pre-World War I. Some of the commodities in this position are steel, furniture, house furnishings, cotton cloth, coal, farm implements and shoes. These components of the B. L. S. index are today at normal levels compared with prewar.

There are only two major commodities that have given evidence of actual inflation the past year, meat and lumber, both at prices about three times prewar. If the influence of these two were eliminated from the B. L. S. index, wholesale prices as a whole today would probably appear to be very close to a proper relationship to prewar, remembering where they finally stabilized in 1922-1926, 50 to 60 per cent above pre-World War I.

What is ahead for meat is plainly shown in Mr. Meyer's excellent analysis of August 12. Lumber is where it is principally because we are building about twice as many housing units as we ever built before.

Strange as it may seem to some, the most significant development in prices over the past year has been a deflation, the 25-40 per cent drop in grain prices since last winter. Whether meat and lumber prices will be readjusted with a similar lack of painful repercussions remains to be seen. But the "remedies" Mr. Keyserling is so anxious to uncover will be found only in the normal play of economic forces, just as we have seen illustrated in grain prices.

"Atom Toys"

Your editorial of July 23, hinting at the potentially diabolical nature of the "atom toy", is of deep concern to the writer. First, because you chose to mention, and then ignore, the possibility that the toy referred to might "be directed at peaceful pursuits;" and secondly, because you are, in part, parent of the child!

Possibly you recall the numerous articles that have appeared in your newspaper over a period of the past few years, stating the concern on the part of the United States Atomic Energy Commission that the subject of atomic energy will ever be associated only with destructive enterprises, and that the profound benefits and constructive value of this great power will be ignored because of being less sensational. Probably you will also recall that you have from time to time offered news stories on the need for public education in this new field of science. It should not come as any great surprise to you that, due to efforts of this nature on your part, the manufacturer of the scientific toy to which you referred in your recent editorial was thereby encouraged to develop the atomic energy kit—not for the destructive end as you darkly surmise, but rather for an altogether wholesome, educational and enlightening purpose.

The atomic energy kit, as it appears in the chemistry set in which it is offered, is motivated by genuinely lofty ideals, for the purpose of equipping the young future scientists with a background of sound knowledge—and definitely not for the purpose of teaching "the little darlings how to blow themselves to smithereens." You played a stimulating part in the development of this scientific toy—please do not damn it with the taint of illegitimacy by renouncing it at this point.

"Colonel Chabert"

This is just a brief note of protest against Sonia Stein's review of the French film, Colonel Chabert, in The Washington Post of August 16. Headlined "Colonel Chabert Film Depressive," it struck me as a most gloomy and depressing, as well as misleading, criticism of a splendid moving picture.

The whole point of the film was to show that Colonel Chabert (Raimu), though he failed to regain his material wealth and titles and had been continually despised and rejected by men, in the end found inner peace, which was worth much more to him.

As a story of the victory of a man's spirit over intolerable odds, most convincingly portrayed by Raimu, the picture is a great inspiration.

Spy Anachronism

Surely the peacetime spy is an anachronism and exists only in the imagination of distraught minds who subscribe to any absurdity whether in creeds or [illegible] Any information that these "spies" can get must be inconsequential in comparison with what is available to anyone who for the price of a stogie can take away from the Government Printing Office an armful of the technical discoveries of the Army, Navy and Air Forces.

And now I see that for 35 cents I can get the latest report of the Atomic Energy Commission. In April, the Supreme Court declined to interfere with a lower court's ruling that it is not illegal to mail scientific information that is not withheld from the public, to a foreign country. But these spy stories give zest to the dullest—and politically and socially to an astonishing extent, the worst people in the United States.

"Advocate" Defined

In The Washington Post of August 12, there are several letters under the heading "Communist Indictments," one by Elizabeth Wilkins. She seems to feel that the 12 Communists in question are being indicted not for what they have done or what they might be expected to do but for "advocating the forceful overthrow of the United States Government."

She explains that they are being indicted for what they think and that this is un-American and dangerous.

Advocate, according to the dictionary, means: to plead the cause of another; to warmly defend some special cause; to professionally plead for another in a court of law.

Advocate is not a passive word like think but is an active working word.

German Food Consumption

As a member of a special commission appointed by Secretary of the Army Royall to study nutrition in bizonal Germany, May, 1948, I am submitting factual data to refute the wholly erroneous communication of Mr. C. Monteith Gilpin, Society for the Prevention of World War III, published in The Washington Post August 13.

The chief error made by Mr. Gilpin is his guess of 2101 calories for German indigenous food production. The actual value for 1947 as estimated by qualified resident military government officials was 80 calories. The second error is the value of 1221 calories for food imports. The actual value is of the order of 1000 calories. The report of the commission gives the following estimates for food consumption:

"At the present time, the per capita calorie intake of the urban, nonself-suppliers in the two zones is of the order of 2200 daily. This covers the basic normal consumer's daily ration, which at present corresponds to about 1500 calories, and all supplements, which taken together add a "spread" estimated at 420 calories per head of the whole population concerned. The additional 300 calories represent an estimate of the energy value of food obtained "off the ration." It is the effort spent in obtaining these supplementary supplies that is responsible for much wasted time, physical energy and demoralization."

That these estimates are liberal is indicated by the fact that the normal consumer ration has averaged in the past about 1350 calories instead of the present value of 1500 calories. The estimate of 300 calories per capita per day obtained "off the ration" is also liberal when one considers that a loaf of bread on the black market costs more than a day's wages and a pound of butter (if available) a month's wages.

An additional paragraph from the commission's report is pertinent:

"It is of the utmost importance to appreciate that the present subnormal state of nutrition, which on superficial inspection may give the impression of being satisfactory, has been reached and is maintained only at the expense of: (a) loss of weight, (b) diminished capacity for sustained muscular effort, (c) lowered body metabolism, (d) decreased work output.

It is axiomatic that work can be done only by the expenditure of energy. Energy comes from food or body tissues. If weight is to be maintained with inadequate food, work output must be decreased. If work output is maintained with inadequate food, weight will be lost until finally weakness prevents any further effort. In the present instance, a compromise has been reached in which a loss of weight and lowered body metabolism have made it possible to maintain some degree of activity on a reduced food intake, but only at the expense of a work output considerably below full capacity and prewar levels.

It is the combination of the loss of weight and decreased work which permits the appearance of a fair nutritional state. This apparently adequate state of nutrition is illusory, however, and any attempt to increase work output without a sufficient increase in food would result only in further losses of body weight, decreased ability to work and poorer health. A large amount of data indicating the close correspondence between work output and food intake was examined by the commission."

Pluner Asleep At The Switch

Mrs. Feddup Screams

MRS. FRANCINE FEDDUP, periodic screamer aloud at human stupidities, has broken out again. Hailed into court for disturbing the peace, she admitted to Judge Parmalee Pudd that she had rushed out on her front porch shortly before dinner the evening before and "let the neighborhood have it."

"I'd been listening to the news broadcasts, your honor . . . those excited 'this is it' voices sounding like soap opera announcers. And about what? Brawlings of the human race in Berlin, Moscow, Palestine, on Capitol Hill, Main Street. Threats, fis shaking, name calling, spy charges, traitor accusations. Snarling be'ween nations, ideologies, religions, political parties——"

"Have you had a loyalty test recently, Mrs. Feddup?" interrupted the judge.

"Yes, your honor. Also my annual physical checkup, my twice a year visit to the dentist, a check on my reading glasses——"

"Get to the point" said the judge testily. "What set you screaming this time?"

"I was thinking, your honor, how nothing made sense. In a few weeks it would be so that you couldn't turn on the radio without hearing the angry rasping voice of some political speaker telling how everybody on the other side was a crook or a traitor. And yet all of us, Republicans, Democrats, even the Russians, in the same boat—all headed for the rapids."

"DON'T include me!" protested the judge. "I'll not go over the rapids in any non-segregated boat. Anyway, what are you talking about?"

"I'm talking, your honor, about what the human race is headed for. I'm talking about the germ and chemical weapons that the delegations at the United Nations are planning to shelve along with the atom bomb. But most of all I'm talking about the way two and a quarter billion inhabitants of this wornout planet are hiding their heads in the sand from their common enemy—starvation, lying in wait just around the corner. I'm talking about how they're spending all their energies fighting each other over boundaries, treaties, elections——"

"You forget, Mrs. Feddup, that this is an election year," interposed the judge. The plaintiff hastily clapped her hand over her mouth. "Anyway," demanded the judge, "just why did you scream?"

"Your honor, I'd been reading what William Vogt said in Road to Survival about the land on this planet marching into the sea beneath our very feet——"

"There you are! I told you the last time you were in here to quit all this fool reading. It puts theories in your head. Why don't you take up something—needlepoint, antiques, charity—and get your mind off of ideas?"

"BUT THAT'S what drove me to screaming, your honor—thinking how everybody had his mind on something else than the real thing. Here we were fighting ever thing but the hunger that was closing on us. Here were 50,000 more births than deaths every day, and the means of feeding these new mouths being squandered faster every hour. Three billion people to support on this exhausted planet 50 years from now, and not enough decent land now to insure everyone three square meals."

"Why worry about a lot of foreigners?" said the judge irritably. "This country's got the biggest corn crop in its history."

"I—I—excuse me, your honor. I thought it was coming on again—I mean the screaming. You see, I was thinking of how we in this country were on the way to coolie standards of living too—using up our forests, letting them be destroyed by fire because of congressional penny-pinching, building up new dust bowls, selling out our plains to the highest bidders, letting our land go down the rivers, and everybody wasting, wasting, and not giving a thought to the day when this continent may become another Atlantis."

"There's nothing the matter with this country, Mrs. Feddup!" angrily shouted the judge. "It's the greatest country in the world!"

"All the more reason for screaming, your honor, when you see it headed for S-Day."

"Now Mrs. Feddup," said the judge, "you've just been listening to a lot of theories and propaganda. Anyway, you can't change human nature."

A long shrill scream pierced the courtroom.

"Twenty-five dollars," said the judge, banging his gavel.

Mrs. Feddup opened her purse. "It was worth it," she said.

Tenth Amendment

We hear a great deal, nowadays, about the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States. But what about the Tenth? Nearly everybody north of Mason and Dixon's Line, including the Supreme Court, seems to have forgotten that it's still there.

Perhaps that Tenth Amendment ought to go. Perhaps all the powers of Government, in this Atomic Age, should be exercised from Washington in spite of the fact that limitations on the central authority have formed the backbone of Anglo-Saxon freedom for more than 700 years. If so, however, let us make the change by constitutional action, in an orderly, straightforward way.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

On Western Unity

LIPPMANN

THOUGH THE conflict between East and West has become so critical this summer, the nations of western Europe are making meager progress toward economic cooperation and political unity. One might have supposed that the menace of the Russian power and the fear of war would have caused the countries outside the Russian orbit to draw closer together for their own security and their own economic salvation.

It has not worked that way. The reports from the headquarters of the European program indicate that not unity but a policy of each country for itself is in the ascendant. The crucial test of cooperation, which is whether the participating governments can agree among themselves on the division of American aid, has thus far had disappointing results. In the field of military security there is little to indicate that there has been any substantial progress toward agreement on a strategical plan of defense. Even in a matter like the disposition of the Italian colonies, which is of such consequence to the future of the Mediterranean Basin, the British view differs seriously from the French and the Italian.

IT IS ONLY too evident that the general fear and insecurity have not been conducive to the great acts of statesmanship which the American people hoped and believed would follow the adoption of the Marshall Plan. On the contrary, fear and insecurity have tended to divide rather than to unite. The instability of governments on the continent, and the vulnerability of the nations within reach of the Russian armies, has caused Great Britain to look for her salvation outside of Europe, and to shrink from political and economic entanglement with the continent. For these reasons, which are quite understandable, Britain has not taken the leadership in the movement of European unity.

Our own actions have been curiously contradictory. We have a dual role in Europe. As the underwriters of the recovery program we stand for cooperation and unity. But as the occupying power in Germany, as the protectors of Greece and Turkey, we are also participants in the European Recovery Program. It is noteworthy that the claims of western Germany, Greece and Turkey have been very difficult to reconcile with the claims of the other western governments. The policy of cooperation which Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Harriman are trying to promote has had to contend with the policies of General Clay's military government and of the Greek and Turkish governments, though presumably they are especially ready to listen to American advice in matters of this kind.

LITTLE HAS BEEN heard of late about western union. There are, no doubt, continuing discussions but the outlook is not promising. The reason for that is that American and British strategical doctrine, based as it is on sea and air power, is difficult to reconcile with the view of the continental countries that their paramount need is a guaranty against invasion by ground armies.

In the absence of a genuine military agreement, a genuine program of economic rationalization and of freer trade is impossible. For each nation seeks to make itself self-sufficient in the essential elements of security and economic necessity. The British, for example, do not wish to become dependent upon the products of a French or an Italian factory which could not, in the event of war, be defended.

ALL THESE SIGNS of disunity in western Europe do not, however, mean that western Europe is at the mercy of the Russians. The Russians are contained at the military frontier in the middle of Europe by the total power of the United States. The Soviet orbit is no larger than it was three years ago, and no European country outside the area of the Red army's predominance has been captured by the Communists.

There is little reason to think that the stalemate can be resolved by military force. That is to say, the Russians cannot march to the west without precipitating a war in which Russian cities will certainly be devastated long before American cities could be attacked seriously. On the other hand, it is not possible for us to take the initiative and force a military showdown. For we cannot defend western Germany and western Europe against the Red army. The fact that we cannot defend western Europe, even though we could inflict fearful havoc on the Soviet Union, would mean that in case of war we could not count upon any effective and reliable allies on the European Continent. The poor showing of western Europe in economic cooperation and political unity is a stern warning of what would happen if the issue were forced too far.

THE STALEMATE between the East and West must either continue, assuaged if possible by a modus vivendi about the hot spots like Perlin, or it must be resolved by negotiation in which, whatever the concessions given and taken, the result is a military withdrawal from the center of Europe, and the rise of a buffer zone between the two giant powers.

Work Of The Forest Service

McCALL, IDAHO. — William James, America's great philosopher, wrote about the need of mankind to find a moral equivalent for war. He was speaking of the need to find, in time of peace, some great unifying force that would release all of man's energies for creative good as they are released in war for destruction.

Childs

Something approaching that is the United States Forest Service. If ever I have seen men dedicated to a cause, and faithful and efficient in that dedication, it is in the guardianship of the mountain heartlands of the West, which under law rests on this service.

It is a service as decentralized as any Government organization could be. Forest supervisors and rangers have a lot of independence and authority. They make the decisions on which the well-being of forest and river and valley depend.

Since it is part of a large bureaucracy, the Department of Agriculture, it has some of the blights of bureaucracy. The red tape, manifested in innumerable records, often seems excessive. Lumbermen and stock growers frequently accuse the service of arbitrary and dictatorial decisions.

But seeing the vast devastation that has been worked by fire and erosion and the narrow margin of security, I think I would incline to side with the service in any such argument. Without the water from the watersheds which are protected by the Forest Service, the livelihood of thousands upon thousands of families in the West would disappear. And that would be only the beginning of a chain of consequences fatal to the empire of the West.

FROM THE HIGH protected watersheds, the mountain streams run down into the rivers. The flood water from melting snows in the spring is stored in reservoirs built by the Bureau of Reclamation. Then during the growing season this water is released to farmers in the valleys through an elaborate irrigation system.

It works a magical transformation. Land that supported only sagebrush and sparse grass blooms with rich crops. While the hills are brown and desert-like, the valleys are green and fruitful.

This fruitfulness begins in the smallest rivulet high in the wilderness of the national forests. The precious water must be guarded and guided from the stream bed at 8000 feet to the irrigation canal in the floor of the valley.

Fire is the most menacing enemy. The Forest Service is geared to fight it with modern weapons. Fire jumpers—the paratroopers of peace—are rigorously trained in the technique of parachuting out of planes to put out fires before they can spread.

By radio and telephone from a network of lookouts comes the warning of the first small blaze. It is plotted on the map, a dispatcher sends out a plane and soon the Forest Service paratroopers are dropping on the fire with equipment to fight it.

Supervisor John T. Mathews of the Payette National Forest, with headquarters in McCall, has a force of 60 smoke jumpers. For these 60 summer jobs he had 483 applications from young men prepared to undergo the stern training and then to drop from a swiftly moving plane in a remote part of the forest.

An almost equally menacing enemy is the destruction of soil caused when too many sheep and cattle graze in the mountain meadows. At this point politics of an explosive variety enters in.

HERE IN IDAHO the Forest Service has had considerable cooperation from ranchers and stockmen. They did not join with livestock associations in Wyoming and Nevada in a move that seemed to have as its ultimate goal the removal of public forests from Federal guardianship. The scarcely concealed objective was to turn these lands over to the States and thence, in all probability, to private ownership and exploitation.

But that move backfired. Farmers, sportsmen and conservationists were quick to see that it threatened everything they valued including the base of permanent development in the whole region. Frightened politicians, who had fallen in with the move, hastily tried to run to cover.

The men of the Forest Service—the full-time personnel is only about 2500—are dedicated to the concept of a permanent growth of the forest or what remains of it. They are at war with the cut-and-get-out logger who leaves nothing behind; closes down his mill; throws men out of work; and leaves whole counties without tax revenue.

Petty congressional economies and inflationary prices have seriously hampered the work of the Forest Service. But the dedication of a devoted body of men is there to build on for America's future.

The Iron Curtain

Gouzenko Averts Recall Home

(This is he story of the former Russian cipher expert who exposed Stalin's spy ring in Canada in September, 1945. It is not unlike the American spy story now being told.—Editor's Note.)

By Igor Gouzenko

INSTALLMENT XII

One afternoon in September 1944 it happened—like a bolt from the blue!

Colonel Zabotin called me into his office and said, "For reasons unstated, the immediate recall of you and your family has been ordered by the director."

For the remainder of the afternoon I worked as if in a trance. Eventually I finished my work and mechanically put away my code books in the safe. I walked slowly along the darkening streets totally oblivious of the rain and my lateness for supper. Poor Anna! How I dreaded telling her.

Anna opened the door.

"Oh, Igor, I was getting worried—you are so late. Why . . ."

I shoved her gently aside and closed the door behind me.

"It's bad news, Anna."

She raised both hands to her mouth, her eyes widening with terror.

"We have been recalled. The order was sent to Zabotin this afternoon."

Anna sank to her knees on the floor. She didn't cry, but just stared mutely at the wall. I picked her up and carried her to the sofa.

"Poor Andrei!" she said at last. "I thought our child would grow up in this country. Now we have to take him back to misery and starvation and hopeless living. It is awful . . . awful!"

That night I thought over my plan of approach very carefully. Next morning when Zabotin finally got around to hearing me, I stressed that the Soviet Embassy in general and the military attache in particular were badly undermanned.

"Yes, that's right," agreed Zabotin, "but Moscow decides such things. I will ask the director to reconsider your recall until further additions to the staff make your departure more practical."

Relieved by Order

To my immense relief, Moscow heeded Zabotin's suggestion and ordered that I remain "for the time being" at cipher work.

That night I hastened home to tell Anna of the good news. To my surprise she didn't seem to be impressed.

"Let's face facts," she said quietly. "It's only a reprieve. We will still have to face the crisis one day. What then?"

"We won't go back, Anna! Andrei deserves his opportunities in this country. You are entitled to live like these Canadian wives. We will pack up and disappear somewhere in Canada or even in the United States. We will change our names. I will take other work. I will . . ."

As September blended into winter and winter into spring, I found my perspective on the Soviet espionage ring undergoing a sharp change.

The Soviet's massive espionage enterprise, therefore, began assuming a new status for me. It now loomed as a threat to the very democracy into whose blessed shelter I was planning to take myself and family. The Soviet strategy was apparent.

Peace Talk a Screen

The strategy consisted in having Soviet spokesmen hold forth on every occasion about peace and security. This was the verbal smoke screen for active and vigorous preparation for a Third World War!

I could see that the Soviet government was industriously engaged in establishing a fifth column in Canada. Even diplomatic representatives were taking part, and the Communist Party within Canada had been changed from a political party into a fifth column for use in case of war.

In our own small military attache unit, all diplomatic representatives were being equipped with motion picture cameras as well as still cameras. Motinov and Rogov made it a point to seek invitations to visit military establishments and always took along both motion picture and still cameras.

"Like Trusting Children"

"They are like trusting children," Motinov laughingly told Zabotin one afternoon after touring an artillery testing area somewhere in Ontario. "Even the commanding officer helped me to take pictures when I said they were to be used in showing our troops how our brave Canadian allies train. He swelled up like a pompous cock. When he told me he could operate my type of movie camera, I asked him to cover a certain phase of the new test while I took some close-ups of range-finders with my still camera."

Zabotin's photographic laboratory was now fully organized and operating under the extremely capable Gorshkov, whom the Canadian authorities knew officially only as the chauffeur of the Military Attache. To offset possible suspicion in the four or five stores in Ottawa where photographic materials were available, we were all pressed into service from time to time buying supplies. Three cases of photographic paper arrived one day by diplomatic mail from the Soviet as an extra precaution.

Extra assistants had to be taken on from our ranks when the National Research Council agents began to supply secret scientific works for photographing. Since the papers usually had to be replaced within eight hours or so, the laboratory worked overnight.

Frequently, after securing some particularly important photographs such as those obtained by Motinov and Rogov, they would be sent directly to Moscow in the diplomatic mail for developing there.

We stood in awe one Monday after a "photographic feat" by Zabotin.

The colonel, in high fettle, related how he had been invited by an officer of the Canadian Army General Staff to go fishing in the waters of the Chalk River.

"That does not mean anything to you," said Zabotin, "but I knew a very important plant, known as the Chalk River plant, was operating near there. As a matter of fact, Moscow recently asked me to supply a description of it."

Atomic Research Plant

(I was not aware at that time that the Chalk River plant was playing a key role in Canada's atomic bomb research.)

"Well, I took my camera along," continued Zabotin, "and asked if it would be all right to take some pictures for my album. My host said, 'Certainly' and rowed the boat into better position for the sun. And there are the pictures of the secret plant going by mail tonight . . ." he tapped a parcel suggestively, "which represents smart service for Moscow, huh?"

(Tomorrow: Gouzenko decides to obtain documentary evidence that will convict three traitors—one of them an atomic scientist.)

New 4-Power Parley Seen in Moscow Talks

Moscow, Aug. 18 (AP).—Western diplomats and the Soviet Union appeared today to be nearing agreement on the calling of a four-power top level conference on the whole problem of Germany.

A reliable source said the current talks on East-West differences were drawing to a close.

United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and British Representative Frank Roberts were expected to meet with the Russians again—probably on Friday.

This would be the seventh meeting in the Kremlin since the diplomatic discussions started July 31.

Technical difficulties are believed to be holding up progress and agreements, but it can be reported on good authority that progress has been made.

Berlin remains a problem, but not so complex as one might believe. The Western powers and the Soviets are not too far apart on this subject, it is reported.

British Dearth of Cigarettes Halts Vacation of Leader

London, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Britain's cigarette famine got so bad today that:

Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, interrupted his vacation to hold a series of emergency conferences with Cabinet Ministers and tobacco experts.

Dozens of organizations warned the government that production would drop and the export drive would go up in smoke unless workers could get cigarettes.

Scores of factories and offices sent out "cigarette posses" to hunt smokes for workers who stayed at their benches and desks.

Hundreds of Britons queued outside tobacco shops, but many of them had to buy snuff because the shelves were bare of cigarettes.

The tobacco "panic" was touched off by the announcement that Britain would cut its tobacco purchase quotas in the next few months because of the dollar shortage.

Authoritative sources said tonight that the government does not intend to ration cigarettes. It plans, the sources said, to use more Balkan and Rhodesian and less American tobacco in order to save dollars.

Fleeing Yugoslav General Is Slain

Belgrade, Aug. 18 (AP).—The former chief of staff of the Yugoslav army has been killed in an attempt to flee across the border into Romania, the government said today.

He is Gen Arso Jovanovic, about 42, who was intimately associated with Marshal Tito in the days of partisan warfare against the Nazis.

The escape was the latest in the developments following the Cominform's attack on Tito and his "nationalistic" policies.

It touched off speculation that Jovanovic was trying to make his way to Russia, perhaps to head up an external movement with Soviet support against Tito's government.

Slain by Border Guard

Borba, official organ of the Communist Party, and other Belgrade newspapers said Jovanovic was killed by a border guard shortly after midnight August 12 near the Yugoslav-Romanian border. They added:

Jovanovic and three others were hustling toward the border when the guard accosted them. They said they were hunting wild boar. One of the party pulled out a pistol and fired at the guard. The guard fired back, killing Jovanovic and another identified as Svetolik Arabjac, manager of a state farm in Montenegro.

The accounts said Maj. Gen. Brancko Petricevic had been captured and that a fourth member of the party, Col. Vlado Dapcevic, "probably" managed to escape to Romania.

Speculation that Jovanovic might have been trying to escape to the Soviet Union stemmed in part from the fact that he had gone to Russia for a special military course after leaving the post of Yugoslav army chief of staff. He held that office four years.

Jovanovic was known as one of the most capable officers in the prewar Yugoslav army and was a well-known writer on military affairs.

Italian Army Gets Test

Strange Cargo . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER—A shipment of pewter spoons, locks, cups and other relics—shipped from England 198 years ago—is examined by Isabel O'Leary of the Army Engineers Office, after its arrival in Philadelphia only yesterday. The supplies were taken from an early eighteenth century British vessel which sank about 1750 with a cargo consigned to colonial residents of Philadelphia. The ship was discovered two weeks ago by Army engineers dredging the Delaware River near Thorofare, N. J.

Berlin Threatens to Print Marks Unless Dispute Ends

From Press Dispatches

Berlin, Aug. 18.—The Berlin city government tonight served notice that it would print its own emergency "Berlin Mark" unless the East-West financial quarrel were settled and one side or the other produced the German money needed to keep the city going.

The city government's threat is the latest move in the financial crisis that began nearly a month ago when the Russians froze all the city government's funds—the city bank is situated in their zone—and the East-Mark accounts of the West-sector private firms.

Ever since, the shortage of money has severely crippled economic life. It constitutes one of the severest cases of money starvation that has ever afflicted a modern metropolis.

Soviet Offers Coal

The Berlin city government's emergency resolution was passed today even as the Russians stepped up their campaign of offering material inducements to West-sector Germans.

This inducement consisted of a Soviet offer to provide for all of Berlin some coal for heating homes. The offer was to begin with a first installment of 60,000 tons of coal with each person entitled to 100 pounds.

Col. Frank L. Howley said he had studied the Russian announcement and concluded: "Obviously, either Soviet mathematics are bad, Soviet intent is bad, or both."

The Russian offer had several strings attached. The coal would be issued only to those West Berliners who had come to the Soviet sector to register for food ration cards. Payment would be required in Russian-sponsored currency.

Hailing the British-American air supply operation as "without precedent," Howley said that in 55 days American and British cargo planes have brought more than 100,000 tons of food, coal, medical supplies and other vital materials into besieged Berlin.

Each resident of the three western sectors is receiving as much food as he did before the blockade," Howley said. "Vital medical supplies are on hand in the western sectors in more than sufficient quantities. Utilities are functioning, powered by airborne coal. In short, the blockade has failed in its attempt to starve the democratic people of Berlin into submission."

The supply armada continued at a fast clip today. In a 24-hour period, 563 planes landed at Tempelhof and Gatow airfields with an estimated more than 3800 tons of supplies.

The huge C-74 Globemaster made its second trip into Berlin loaded with 12 ½-tons of rock-crushing equipment to be used in building a third airfield in Berlin.

American foot troops wound up all-night defensive maneuvers early today in Berlin's Grunewald Forest.

Helmeted troops with rifles, mortars and machine guns simulated delaying action against an "enemy" that had captured Gatow airport, the British supply field for the sealed off western sectors.

Officers in charge of the operation said British troops theoretically took part in the maneuver, although none were "fighting."

Czechs Ask Ouster of Papanek

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Czechoslovakia has asked for the dismissal of Dr. Jan Papanek, deposed Czech delegate to the United Nations, as a budget expert for the U. N., it was announced today.

The move promised to precipitate a sharp East-West skirmish at the forthcoming Paris session of the General Assembly. But it was considered highly unlikely that the Czech move would muster much support outside the Soviet bloc.

The diplomat, who split with the Prague government after the Communists seized power in February, was appointed to two budgetary posts by last fall's Assembly meeting.

Papanek contends that his service in the two posts has nothing to do with his relations with the Czech government.

Dr. Vladimir Houdek, Czech delegate named by the new Prague government, was not available for comment on what grounds his government will cite in pushing its case against Papanek.

Greeks Said Near Albania And Victory

Athens, Aug. 16 (AP).—Front dispatches said today the Greek Army cut the shrinking 10-mile Grammos Mountain front in two today with capture of the village of Skyrtsi.

Athens newspapers printed unconfirmed reports that Markos Vafiades, Greek guerilla leader, and his "Free Greek" government had withdrawn to Nikolitsi, a town four miles inside the Albanian border.

The Greek foreign ministry said it had asked United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie to request Albania to close her borders against fleeing guerillas and to intern all inside Albania.

A dispatch from Greek Second Corps headquarters at Kozane said the rebels have been crowded back into an area of only nine square miles.

Col. James F. Brittingham of Baltimore, Md., chief of the joint United States military advisory group attached to the Second Corps, said the offensive will be brought to a victorious end within 10 days.

The Greek press ministry said today that six persons were being held for questioning in connection with the slaying of American radio correspondent George Polk, whose body was found may 16 in Salonika Harbor.

The ministry identified the six as a Greek newspaperman, his mother, and four employes of a Salonika hotel where Polk stayed.

Munitions Blow Up Near Swiss Tunnel

Altdorf, Switzerland, Aug. 18 (AP).—Flames spread through munitions magazines of the Swiss army in the mountains behind Goeschenen late today and 800 fearful villagers fled their homes.

The spreading flames were accompanied by increasingly heavy explosions which reverberated through the Alpine peaks behind the village.

The entire population fled, some into airraid shelters.

Dictation Rule Hint Denied at Nanking

Nanking, Aug. 18 (AP).—A report that President Chiang Kai-shek will cast off China's new cloak of democracy and rule by dictatorial decree in the deepening crisis was denied officially today.

The denial came, however, against a backdrop of a new drastic order from Chiang's cabinet banning strikes and student demonstrations.

The report was published in the Chunghwa Times, organ of the so-called "reformist" clique of Kuomintang (government party) legislators and a number of Youth Corps leaders.

The Times said Chiang would return from the summer capital of Kuling and issue an emergency order placing the whole nation in a virtual state of siege. Thus he would rule by decree without the help of the national legislature, elected in February and convened only last May.

Government spokesman Hollington Tong told a reporter:

"That report is untrue. The President may return to Nanking soon, but it will be to handle national affairs which require his attention and will be without special significance."

In Small Plane

English Wife Takes Off on Globe Flight

Cambridge, England, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—A flame-haired artist's model waved goodby to her husband and infant daughter today and, accompanied by a 23-year-old bachelor navigator, took off on a globe-circling flight in a single-engine plane.

If she succeeds, 24-year-old Mrs. Richarda Morrow Tait would be the first woman to fly around the world in a light aircraft.

Her navigator and copilot, Michael Townsend, figured the flight would take six weeks. They plan to fly to North Africa, planned two stops in England before taking off for Marseille. Then Cyprus, Italy, Iran, Arabia, India, Burma, Siam, French Indochina, China, the Aleutians, Alaska, Canada, Newfoundland, Greenland, Iceland and Prestwick, Scotland.

Mrs. Morrow Tait started flying in November and had only 100 hours flying experience before today's takeoff.

The two fliers will pay most of their own expenses. Their plane, a Percival Proctor, saw service as an RAF trainer.

He said they had sat listening for the past 20 days to "dreary political debates" and added: "When we leave here, there will be no change—no change except that the present regime of rigid Soviet control from Bratislava to the Black Sea will have been acknowledged by seven governments at this conference."

Vishinsky claimed the pact would guarantee free navigation of the Danub, despite the Western claim that it lacked safeguards.

"It means what it says," he declared.

Roman Music Critics Fight Duel Over Opera Choice

Rome, Aug. 18 (AP).—Musical criticism brought two Roman writers to the field of honor today.

Critics Mario Corti-Colleoni, of the newspaper Expresso, and Domenico de Paoli, of Il Giornale d'Ita Sera, disagree over appointment of a new superintendent of the Rome Opera House. Their articles took on a personal tone.

This morning they put their differences to the sword in a duel somewhere near Rome. At the fourth assault Corti-Colleoni won a technical victory when he scored a touch against De Paoli.

Cat's Drinking Held Study Aid For Neurosis

San Francisco, Aug. 18 (AP).—The story of a cat that was driven to drink was told to American veterinarians today to point up what they might do toward combatting psychoneurosis in humans as well as in animals.

This cat, in the laboratory of Dr. J. H. Masserman of the University of Chicago and Northwestern University, took to alcohol in order to get up courage to do things it didn't like to get food.

Motion pictures of the cat in action were shown to the American Veterinary Medical Society by Dr. Lloyd C. Moss of Colorado Agricultural and Mechanical College.

The cat disliked the shock but was driven by increasing hunger. A little milk spiked with alcohol was placed within reach. Kitty learned to take a couple of bracers, then bang into the switch.

Since animal pets and humans sometimes react alike, Dr. Moss said, veterinarians who know animal behavior may be able to detect signs of neuroses in pet owners and guide them to psychiatrists or other doctors.

5 Digits to Put D. C. Phones in Big City Class

If anyone needed proof that Washington has grown, he got it yesterday when the telephone company announced it will start a "big city" phone system next spring.

The new system means adding a fifth digit to telephone numbers, and will be started in the spring of 1949 in the Kenmore, Lincoln, Ludlow and Locust exchanges. Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. officials don't know how long it will take before the entire telephone network is changed over.

The numbers like those now in use in New York, will be Ludlow 3-1111, etc., rather than the Ludlow 3111 now in use.

The change-over will not affect hand sets now installed in residences and businesses here. Changes in equipment will be necessary in the telephone company's central offices, however.

Less Than 100 Draft Registrars

A "great need" for at least 3500 volunteers to handle registration of men from 18 through 25 here beginning August 30 is not being met, District Selective Service Director William E. Leahy said yesterday.

Although the call for volunteers went out last Sunday, less than 100 persons have notified local draft headquarters here of their availability, he said.

Leahy, who declared the District draft machinery "can use as many registrars as we can possibly get," blamed some of the lack of response on the fact that many persons who would volunteer are out of town on vacation.

The need for the 3500 registrars follows refusal by the Federal Personnel Council, a group of Government personnel directors, to register draft-eligible Federal employes at work. Of the employed men from 18 through 25 in Washington, most are to be found in the Government, Leahy said.

The idea of the place-of-employment registration is to save time and inconvenience for both employer and employe. At least 15 large concerns in Washington will register their eligible workers, as will the District Government, according to Leahy.

Hilton Hotels Gross Mounts As Net Drops

By S. Oliver Goodman

Hilton Hotels Corp. reported a rise in gross revenues for the first six months this year, but increased costs resulted in a lower net income.

Gross revenues amounted to $21,214,742 in the first half, an increase of $354,831 over the corresponding 1947 period. Net income totaled $2,097,127, equal to $1.20 a common share, compared with $2,336,049 or $1.30 a share in the same period last year.

Hilton in the first six months also had an equity of $279,998, or 17 cents a common share, in the undivided profits of hotels not fully owned. This equity included earnings from the Mayflower Hotel, Washington whose stock is owned 69.48 per cent by the Hilton firm.

In June this year the corporation purchased 54,017 shares of its own convertible preference stock at a cost of $1,896,595. Effects were to increase capital surplus $810,255 and cut dividend requirements on preferred stock $108,034 on annual basis.

Yield Raised On New U. S. Savings Notes

By The Associated Press

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder yesterday announced the issuance on September 1 of new Treasury saving notes carrying a higher interes' yield.

The new "Series D" notes, he said, will mature in three years and carry a maximum yield of $1.40 a month for each $1000, as compared with $1.07 for the Series C notes. Sale of the Series C will end August 31.

The action follows up Snyder's announcement of higher interest rates on Government short-term securities. He describes the policy as anti-inflationary, since private interest rates normally follow the trend of Government bonds. A rise in interest makes it more expensive to borrow money and therefore curtails the expansion of credit.

The Treasury savings notes, usually called "tax-saving notes," are purchased by corporations as a reserve against future payment of taxes. They may be used at any time up to three years for tax payment.

The period in which the notes may not be offered for cash redemption has been cut from six months to four months from the month of issue.

Lard, Soybean Futures At Seasonal Lows

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—All lard and soybean contracts for future delivery sank to new seasonal lows on the Board of Trade today. The decline was in line with weakness in cash fats and oils, and reflected prospects of large cotton, corn and soybean crops, traders said.

Soybeans fell 4½ cents a bushel and November closed at $2.54. That compared with a high of $3.47½ earlier in the year. Lard dropped 25 to 58 cents a hundred pounds with September closing at $19 to $19.02. Its seasonal high was $29.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—Grains, soybeans and lard backed down under steady selling on the Board of Trade today, ignoring favorable news items and concentrating on the pessimistic.

All soybean and lard contracts reached new seasonal lows, as did December corn. The general weakness in fats and oils markets upset soybeans and lard, the latter commodity not being influenced by a fairly sharp advance in live hog prices.

Wheat closed ¾-2¼ lower, September 2.20⅝@2.20¾; corn was ⅛-3¾ lower, September 1.61⅜@1.61½; oats were ⅜ lower to ⅛ higher, September 72⅝@72½; rye was 3½ to 4 cents lower, December 1.71, and soybeans were 4½ cents lower, November 2.54.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—Cotton futures turned heavy in late dealings today as considerable selling pressure developed from New Orleans and locals. Dullness in the spot cotton and textile situation, coupled with large cotton supply prospects this season accounted for the selling. Declines in grains also influenced the market. Final prices were 10 to 85 cents a bale lower.

It's a Good Idea to Have All Your Photo Equipment Insured

By Ollie Atkins

IF YOUR camera equipment and accessories are not fully insured you should look into this matter immediately. Your policy should protect you against accident, breakage, fire and theft. For the amateur photographer the most important phase of protection will be the theft section. Professionals especially need theft and accident protection.

Insurance on photographic equipment is quite inexpensive. The average advanced amateur can fully protect himself against loss for less than $10 a year. I personally cover everything in my darkroom, my Speed Graphic and Rolleiflex and all accessories, and the bill is under $20 a year.

It pays off to keep well insured, too. Back in 1941 my automobile was broken into and thieves walked off with every piece of equipment in the car, including a heavy tripod. I reported the loss immediately to police and my insurance agent and collected full damages.

"The Old Mill" is a 4x5 Crown Graphic shot by Mary Banton Jones, student at the Capitol School of Photography. Miss Jones made the picture on XF Ortho Film, 1/100 second at F/5.6

A most recent experience with my own camera involved two irate automobile dealers in New Jersey who captured me and smashed my Graphic onto the pavement, completely destroying it. Again my insurance protects me against loss and papers are already filed to recover damages.

By the way, the pair who attacked me are currently out on bail awaiting grand jury sessions in September on charges of "assaulting a news photographer," "assault and battery" and "malicious mischief in the amount of $300." All of these charges will make these gentlemen wish they had thought twice before jumping on this cameraman.

News photographers are constantly alert for people who would harm their persons or cameras. On crime-type stories there is always someone who objects to having his picture made. The average amateur does not have to worry about willful destruction of his equipment. His main concern is to see that it isn't stolen.

Police logs in every city are filled with complaints of stolen photographic equipment.

Not all insurance companies carry camera insurance. The ones who do are well known to regular insurance brokers, though, and to locate a company which will accept camera insurance just ask your regular life insurance agent.

Insurance can be obtained to cover studio and darkroom equipment, negatives and prints.

Be sure you understand what your policy actually covers when you sign that dotted line. A clause in my own policy eliminates company liability when I am in unscheduled airplanes.

And if you do have complete insurance protection on everything you own you still must be very careful. The majority of all cameras stolen are taken out of automobiles. So be certain your camera is out of sight even if you lock the car.

TED SHANE and his 50-some-odd models board buses for their photographic junket down to Drum Point Beach this Sunday. All photographers are invited to come and shoot pictures to their heart's content. The girls will pose from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Ann-Katrine Shaw, secretary of the National Photographic Society, advises me that the society will take advantage of the outing by sending its portrait class and special activity group down to Drum Point. My word of advice to everyone is to bring along plenty of lunch, for there is no restaurant in operation near the beach. Detailed instructions on how to reach Drum Point Beach are available on cards in all the camera stores. In brief, here is how to go: Out Pennsylvania ave. to Alabama ave. se., left on Route 4 through Upper Marlboro to Wells Corner, right on Route 416 to Prince Frederick and through Prince Frederick on Route 2 for 15 miles, left at the sign to Drum Point Beach. This writer hopes to be down there and will make a few pictures of the photographers in action for this column.

Photographers who have been troubled with the heat and glare caused by photoflood illumination will be interested to learn of the Oak photoflood synchronizer, a device which turns on the floods for shutter speeds from 1/25th to 1/200th seconds much like a flash synchronizer operates shutters and flash bulbs together. Detailed information on this item may be obtained from the Oak Photo Co., Inc., 3338 West 41st st., Cleveland 9, Ohio.

Phone 'Tips' Help Solve Two Holdups

Telephone tipsters yesterday helped Metropolitan police solve two daylight holdups, one of them dating back almost three months.

Police said that Mannie J. Johnson, 25, of 1221 Wylie st. ne., who is sometimes known as "The Bone," confessed he had beaten a junk dealer last Saturday and robbed him of more than $5000.

His victim was Aaron C. Selis, 49, of 1410 Taylor st. nw., who was beaten about the face and suffered three broken ribs. Selis told police his assailant took $1500 in cash and $4000 in indorsed checks, then made his escape in a truck.

Johnson was picked up at 6th and D sts. nw. after the robbery squad received a telephone tip. After an hour of questioning, police said Johnson confessed the holdup and reenacted the crime. He said he had burned the checks and "gave the cash to some friends" whom police have been unable to locate. Johnson was charged with robbery, assault, housebreaking and unauthorized use of an auto.

A similar tip by phone resulted in the arrest of Edward M. Shane, 28, of 1424 Belmont st. nw. Police say Shane drove the getaway car when Marion Lambert, 22, of 256 Park ave., Takoma Park, Md., was robbed of $231 on May 28.

Miss Lambert had deposited $1000 in cash in the McLachlen Bank at 10th and G sts. nw., and was returning to the Montgomery Ward office, where she is employed, when a money bag containing $231 in change was snatched from her hand. She told police the man who took the money escaped in a car driven by a confederate.

Shane denied implication in the theft and was held in $5000 bond by Municipal Judge Armond W. Scott. His case was continued until September 1.

Falls Church Bans Fire Chasing

Falls Church police and fire chiefs yesterday announced a crackdown on "thrill-seeking motorists" who flock to local blazes and hinder fire-fighters.

City Police Chief E. H. Howe warned that motorists who follow the engines "at extreme reckless speeds" may be racing into a $50 fine.

And Falls Church's volunteer Fire Chief R. D. Royston said the nearly 250 cars that flocked to a house blaze in the Sleepy Hollow subdivision of the city last Saturday night "slowed down" the smoke-eaters considerably.

Howe pointed out that State law makes it illegal to follow fire engine closer than 500 feet, or to park within that same radius of fire equipment.

As one "flagrant violation" of these rules, he cited the case of an unidentified motorist who last week passed and cut in front of an engine responding to an alarm.

He suggested that blue warning lights be installed on the cars of active Falls Church volunteer firemen to identify them in an emergency.

According to Fire Chief Royston, the biggest danger from jam-packed motorists occurs when pump engines have to shuttle between a fire and the nearest water supply, and find their route blocked.

Zoning in Edgewater

A public meeting of property owners of Woodland Beach, Edgewater, Md., will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday in the Woodland Beach Volunteer Fire Department hall to discuss an increase in the road levy to improve local roads.

After 16 Springtimes

Horton's 'Henry' Does Wonders With Pauses

By Sonia Stein

ONE of the graver deficiencies in my education has now been taken care of. Often plagued with embarrassment because I seemed to be only creature living or dead who had never seen "Springtime for Henry," I am duly grateful to the Olney Theater for bringing it in this week.

And it is the definitive edition. Edward Everett Horton has played the Benn W. Levy comedy so often, and it might be said so thoroughly, that his performance is now authoritative.

It is also broad. As the quick and tricky lines go, Henry Dewlip is a wealthy and very gay blade who has romanced the ladies "so persistently and so successfully as to be a menace to the community." Horton's creviced face and elaborate gestures put a slightly different complexion on the matter than the author probably intended.

Both the play and the playing are a very merry business. Much of the humor hangs on word usage. In fact, a goodly bit of one of the longest first acts on record revolves around the correct retort to an announcement of business success on the part of a friend.

Abortive Reformation

The plot lends itself to all kinds of facial expressions and vocal expressions of astonishment. Dewlip has just sent his latest secretary screaming, and has asked the agency for a new one. When she arrives, Dewlip is so overcome by her peaches-and-cream charm (of which she is well aware) that he overlooks her expressed desire to reform him. It seems she is "awfully keen on the decent thing."

Three months later Dewlip has given up liquor, women, gambling and loafing. Now a working member of his automobile manufacturing firm, and "awfully keen on the decent thing" himself, Dewlip is also keen on Miss Smith.

The events which send him back to the arms of the attractive Mrs. Jelliwell, who doesn't know the decent thing when she sees it, and sends Miss Smith into the arms of Mr. Jelliwell, who doesn't seem to know anything, are extravagantly amusing.

The cast makes the most of every line and the pauses in between. Local drama schools might well send their classes out to Olney to watch how this is done.

In addition to Horton, who has had 16 seasons as Henry Dewlip to help him through the evening, there are three other players with somewhat less experience.

Lovely "Straight Man"

Ottilie Kruger, 19-year-old daughter of Actor Otto Kruger, has been in several Broadway plays. As Miss Smith, she speaks her virtuous lines sweetly and clearly, and looks delicious. She also keeps a perfectly straight face during some of Horton's wildest antics and the audience's appreciative chortles.

Vivian Vance also manages that trying chore. As Mrs. Jelliwell, she gets more and more attractive in a worldly way, as the acts go by.

Matthew Smith has been playing Mr. Jelliwell for several seasons with Horton. One of those complete - vacuum - between - the-ears types, he is an effective foil for Dewlip and mildly amusing on his own.

The single set, complete with Dewlip's collection of nudes, is attractive enough, and the costumes are very satisfactory. (This note is for the ladies in the audience who do, according to theatrical legend, appreciate a well-dressed play.)

The play runs very long, being extended by lengthy "business" and by the laughter of the audience.

Yes, indeed, I wish I could fill in the other gaps in my education so pleasantly.

Now, What to Do . . .?

REUNITED—Together again, but shy of funds, Army Corpl. Tony Furio, Mrs. Marjorie Furio and Junior, their 22-month-old son, faced the future yesterday from Orchard Beach, Me. Tony arrived after crossing the continent by plane and train to ponder how to get the blonde "hitch-hike mother" and their son to Texas, where he is being transferred. Mrs. Furio, 25, started to thumb her way to San Francisco last Friday from Bangor because she thought her husband was soon to be sent overseas

50 Floats Join Fete Opening Underpass

More than 50 floats have been entered so far in the celebration of the Georgia ave. Viaduct opening September 11, Charles H. Kopeland, chairman of the "Avenue of Progress Committee," said yesterday.

Among floats entered so far are two from the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oaks and one from the Capital Transit Co.

Any civic, commercial or service organization in the Silver Spring area is eligible for participation in the parade. A series of awards for the best floats have been set up by the Avenue committee.

Kopeland yesterday urged all groups and commercial institutions who wish to participate in the celebration to register with Arthur Burke, parade chairman, at SHepherd 1554, or with the Board of Trade office, SLigo 6300.

The parade also will include a Cavalcade of Transportation, which will feature the oldest motorized train of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. B. & O. President Robert G. White will assist in the formal opening ceremonies for the viaduct, with Maryland's Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr.

Climax of the afternoon ceremonies inaugurating use of the viaduct will be the crowning of Mary Jane Owens as Miss Silver Spring, at Montgomery Blair High School. The evening celebration will include a street dance in front of the Silver Spring Postoffice.

Truman to Meet Press

President Truman will hold a press-radio conference at 10:30 o'clock this morning, it was announced yesterday by Press Secretary Charles G. Ross.

School Needs 'Exaggerated,' Tuck Suspects

Richmond, Va., Aug. 18 (AP).—Governor Tuck told the Commission on State and Local Revenues and Expenditures today that he believed a special session of the Legislature to deal with school problems "should be called only in response to real emergency conditions" and after carefully weighing the facts involved.

Tuck said he feared the school needs in Virginia "may have been exaggerated."

The Governor's statement was made at the commission's organization meeting in the House Appropriations Committee room.

State Senator Garland Gray of Waverly was chosen chairman of the commission. E. Blackburn Moore, House floor leader, was named vice chairman.

Moore introduced a resolution, which was adopted, that all meetings of the commission be in executive session and that its deliberations be confidential, except when public hearings are held.

Counties Ask Session

Tuck called attention to the fact that boards of supervisors of about 33 counties have adopted resolutions asking a special session of the Legislature to provide funds for school building construction.

"They suggest the imposition of a State sales tax for this purpose," the Governor said. He added, however, that the extent to which public sentiment in these counties is in favor of these resolutions is not yet known.

"Nor does it appear from these resolutions whether or not those opposed to a special session and to a sales tax were given an opportunity to appear and to be heard," the Governor declared.

He said letters had been sent out to obtain this information if possible.

He called attention to the fact that the need for funds for school construction and possible sources for such funds "are subjects which come within the purview of the Senate's joint resolution under which you will work, and I am sure you will include these subjects in your study."

Suspects Exaggeration

The Governor said that no one now has full knowledge on these subjects, except in a most general way, and he added, "I very much fear that the needs may have been exaggerated."

The Governor noted that the situation is complicated by Federal Court decisions ordering equal education facilities for whites and Negroes. But he said, "It is only reasonable to believe that the courts will recognize the practical considerations involved in their decisions."

The Governor recalled that it is traditional in Virginia that capital outlays for public free school purposes are the responsibility of the localities. The policy of the State has been to make appropriations for instructional costs and not to make appropriations for capital outlays, he added.

Thyssen Denies Writing Book, 'I Paid Hitler'

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Fritz Thyssen, prewar German steel magnate, said today he did not write the best-selling book, "I Paid Hitler," which bears his name, and charged that it differed greatly from his own memoirs.

Thyssen asserted that all but 10 pages of the book was written by Emery Reves, British and American writer. He said it was based on a collection of memoirs he had supplied to Reves, but that it was not the same as the manuscript he submitted.

Steady Area Growth Prompts ICC to Expand Transit Zone

Because the Greater Washington area is steadily expanding, the Interstate Commerce Commission has decided to expand the Washington commercial zone, effective September 30.

Within the commercial zone, motor carriers may operate under local jurisdiction without obtaining specific ICC authority for their movements.

Effect of the order, announced yesterday, will be to give the Maryland and Virginia State commerce regulation groups a new "yardstick" by which to measure carrier operations in their jurisdictions.

E. J. Milligan, secretary of the District PUC, explained yesterday that with use of this "yardstick" the Maryland and Virginia commissions will be better able to judge need for new carrier service when increased population in the newly defined commercial zone requires it.

Redefinition of the commercial zone was asked by the Capital Transit Co., several motor truck common carriers, and sight seeing companies. The order will not affect present requests for changes in fare structure on public carriers.

The new zone will embrace the suburban area in Montgomery County south of Rockville, and will include nearby towns in Prince Georges County. In Virginia it will extend to Accotink, Annandale, Merrifield, Tysons Crossroads and Swinks Mill.

It will not affect operations within the District of Columbia, which already was included in the Washington commercial zone. ICC officials explained that the order applies to carriers which operate within the commercial zone, but do not extend their operations beyond that zone. Carriers still must apply to the ICC for certificates of operation in order to operate beyond the zone.

Sweet Potato Supports Given

Government price support for Maryland sweet potatoes was announced yesterday at College Park by Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the State Production Marketing Committee.

Support in the form of direct purchases will be at $1.85 a bushel for United States extra No. 1 potatoes of either Nancy Hall or Porto Rican varieties between September 1 and November 15.

The price for United States No. 1 sweet potatoes of the same varieties will be $1.60. Goldens will be supported at 10 cents a bushel or less. A premium of 5 cents a bushel will be given for washed potatoes.

Driver Accused Of Bribery Try Held for Jury

An Alexandria truck driver was held for grand jury action in Alexandria Police Court yesterday after he was accused of offering a policeman $15, and then $20, to "forget" a traffic charge.

Robert C. Davis, 27, 412 Princess st., was bound over to the grand jury on a charge of attempted bribery on the complaint of Policeman Gordon Sanders, who testified Davis tried to buy his freedom after he was arrested for driving a truck on "dead" license tags on Monday.

Sanders, attached to the city's license division, said he stopped Davis when he recognized the truck as one involved in a previous dead-tag case. He said he ordered Davis to drive to police headquarters when he was offered $15 to "forget the whole thing."

En route to headquarters, Sanders said, Davis handed him a $20 bill, repeating his request that the officer "forget" the charge.

Davis, who pleaded not guilty to the attempted bribery charge, told Substitute Judge Harry F. Kennedy that he gave Sanders the $20 because he understood that was the amount of collateral required for the offense.

Following yesterday's hearing, Davis was remanded to jail in lieu of $1000 bond.

Ten Rezonings Authorized

Ten petitions for commercial rezoning and two apartment zonings were approved yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners at public hearings in the County Service Building, Hyattsville, Md.

The commissioners denied one commercial rezoning petition and continued six other petitions set for yesterday.

Commercial rezoning granted included: Philip Milestone, owner for 2.2434 acres at New Hampshire ave. and Eastern ave.; W. W. Rapley, owner, for tract fronting 310 feet on west side New Hampshire ave. and extending into Montgomery County, and about 250 feet on a proposed street in section 2 of Northwest Park; Elizabeth F. Rose, owner, for 13,970 square feet of acreage fronting on Defense Highway and about 150 feet west of Cooper lane; Earl Pryor, agent, 7 lots facing Beecher st., 58th ave. and Arbor st., and two lots on the north side of Arbor st. between 57th pl. and 58th st., Tuxedo.

Also, Earl Pryor, agent, lot 10 block D, Tuxedo; Giuseppe Prina, owner, lot 7 block B, Hampshire Heights, the commissioners refusing to rezone lot 8; Edgar Robbins, owner, lot 4, Sheriff rd. and Nash st.; Solomon P. Hamilton, owner, lots 3 to 6, block 11, West Fairmount Heights; Edward K. Allen, portion Thomas M. Miller tract on east side of Riggs rd., between Eastern ave. and Chillum rd.; Rennie H. Wilson, owner, tract 100 feet on Addison rd. to a depth of 300 feet on Central ave. The commissioners disapproved the petition of Henry Black, owner, for lots 88 and 89, Cedar Heights.

Red Sox Wallop A's, 10-2, Move Into Second Place

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Blue Plate Special

BASEBALL DEPT. There wasn't much doubt at Griffith Stadium the other night that Goose Goslin commanded the loudest cheers when the Nats' old-timers were introduced, one by one, to the crowd of 25,000. Fans still go for the guy who can swing that bat, and Goslin was the man with the wallop on those 1924-25 pennant winners.

POVICH

The Goose was the Nats' Babe Ruth. And if he didn't quite match the extraordinary power of the Babe's drives he still hit the ball a fur piece and he could strike out with Ruthian gusto. Goslin's missed swing was always fraught with the possibility that he'd spin flat on his face. He tagged the ball for 37 home runs in 1930, and two years before that, with Ruth in the league, he led the league in hitting with .379.

Goslin and the Babe had much the same left-handed batting stance in fact. Both liked to crowd the plate, their right legs dug into the batters' box at a seemingly awkward angle. The Goose's stance was even more extreme than Ruth's. He was virtually looking over his shoulder at the pitcher. There was wonder, in fact, how Goslin could see past his big beak to draw a good bead on the pitch.

"That was my trouble," Goslin laughed the other night. "I led the league in hitting when I was a one-eyed hitter. I always thought I could bat .650 if I could ever get two eyes on the pitch."

FOOTBALL DEPT.—Chicago's All-Star football game is coming-up again tomorrow night and it ought to be a beaut, offering as it does a wondrous chance to see the singlewing and T formations against the same opposition. Frank Leahy, who is coaching the Collegians for the test with the National Football League Champions, the Chicago Cardinals, will operate his big squad on the swing shift.

He'll send separate T-units and single-wing teams into action against the pros. Johnny Lujack will quarterback the T-men, and when Leahy is ready to pull that gang Howard Yerges, Michigan's clever quarterback, will take over with his single-wing cohorts. If the Collegians win, disciples of the two systems will have something concrete to point at.

For the first time since the All-Star game originated in 1934, the pros aren't the favorites. Today it's "pick-em" meaning lay the bookies 6-to-5 and take your choice of clubs. It's a swing toward the collegians who won the last two games, each, 16-0. They're younger and faster than the pros to begin with, but this season and the last two the pros are meeting a different kind of collegians—big boys who came back from a war and aren't exactly juveniles.

FIGHT DEPT.—The Variety Club's Ezzard Charles-Jimmy Bivins fight at Griffith Stadium on September 13 now has been twice blessed. The battle took on more stature in the heavyweight reckoning when Gus Lesnevich was removed as a title contender by Freddy Mills in England, and Joe Walcott is now aching to take on the winner of the local show.

The fact that Walcott has been matched with Lesnevich in Jersey City in late September is another break for Washington Matchmaker Gabe Menendez, who visions Walcott as an easy winner. His plans now call for Walcott to meet the Charles-Bivins winner in October in Washington and he's counting heavily on the National Boxing Association to give recognition to that promotion as a title fight despite the abdication of Joe Louis.

The temptation for the N. B. A. to recognize a new champion is strong. With Louis out of the picture, it is the one chance to break the Mike Jacobs-New York City monopoly on the heavyweight title and this correspondent is telling the N. B. A. nothing it does not know.

BABE RUTH DEPT.—Joe Holman, former baseball writer, friend of Ruth's, and one of the nicest persons in our town, contributes:

The Babe Is Dead, His Hands Are Stilled
As countless millions whom he thrilled
Pray God he shall forever be
A pattern for sincerity.
A model for our supermen—
He showed us in his friendly way
His heart was right; he played to win
In any game he chose to play.

The Babe Is Dead, Healed of the Pain
He bore so bravely; once again
He hears the echoes of our cheers
Resounding from the yesteryears.
He's young again and full of fire.
Once more he hits the longest ball.
For death fulfilled his heart's desire,
Revived sweet dreams beyond recall.

His Errors, They Were Human Quite
And left him humble and contrite.
His triumphs? They were shared with friends,
His bounties scattered to the winds.
His home runs saved a golden game
When traitors rocked it with their blows,
His was the might that overcame
The treachery of faithless foes.

Old Friends Await the Babe Somewhere—
I sense that Colonel Ruppert's there;
Judge Landis seems to understand
And Colonel Huston shakes his hand.
Lazzeri, Hug and Gehrig, too,
Salute a pal who's smiled on through
An earthly mist, and now can claim
The plaudits of a grander game.

The Babe Is Dead, the World Is Stunned.
Let's rally to THE CANCER FUND.
And help rout out this dread disease
That makes death chants of eulogies.
Let's spare fine men who carry on
The anguish that poor Babe endured
And find a way, now that he's gone,
That future thousands may be cured.

The Babe Is Dead, Great Was His Fight.
Struck Out by Cancer's Stabbing Pain.
Let's Conquer Cancer Through God's Might
And Prove He Did Not Die in Vain.

Yanks Beat Nats, 4-1, on Weird Play

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Nats got beat again last night, but it took one of the weirdest plays 12,000 Griffith Stadium onlookers ever saw for the Yanks to send the locals down to their sixty-seventh whipping, 4-1.

After starting 90 minutes late because of rain, the game was interrupted again by a downpour—this time for good—after five completed innings.

Out of Mickey Haefner's left-hand came a knuckle ball in the second inning which Pitcher Vic Raschi did not swing at, but which, nevertheless allowed three Yankee runs to score, enough to present Raschi with his sixteenth triumph.

Second Passed Ball

With two away and the bases loaded, Haefner threw a knuckler to Raschi which got away from Jake Early for a passed ball, his second of the ill-fated inning. Steve Souchock dashed in from third and Phil Rizzuto raced in from second as Early scurried to retrieve the ball.

Early threw to Haefner to get Rizzuto at the plate, but the Yankee shortstop slid in, knocked the ball out of Haefner's hands and Gus Niarhos, on first when the pitch was made, came all the way home with the third run. All three Yankees got on base with walks.

12th Loss for Mickey

Milo Candini finished for the Nats and gave up the fourth Yankee run, a legitimate score which developed from George Stirnweiss' double, an infield out and Johnny Lindell's fly.

Held to three hits, the Nats averted a shutout in the fifth inning when Eddie Stewart doubled and Al Kozar singled him home.

IN SHORT—In respect to the memory of Babe Ruth, the Yankees are wearing mourning bands on their uniforms for the rest of the reason . . . Cece Travis, Buddy Lewis, Fred Marberry, Dave Harris and Curley Ogden, five of the Nat old-timers who converged on Griffith Stadium Tuesday for Griffith night, stayed over another night to see the ball game . . . Early Wynn was scheduled to face the Yankees last night, but when he complained of a slight cold Mickey Haefner got the call. Wynn tries for his eighth victory today with either Allie Reynolds, Frank Shea or Tommy Byrne going for the Yanks.

Johnson Kids Go Into Final Series Today

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The Walter Johnson School opens its own "little world series" today with four games on the Ellipse.

The series continues Friday in Griffith Stadium's big league setting, and by Saturday championships in two 12-and-under and two 13-14 brackets should be decided.

Rosedale plays Manor Park in the 12-and-under A bracket at 10 a. m., South Ellipse.

Cook plays Thomas-Parkside in the 12-and-under B bracket at 10 a. m., East Ellipse.

Bundy Tigers play Kelly Miller, 13-14 B bracket at 10 a. m., North Ellipse.

The only remaining semifinal game will also take place at 10 a. m. in the West Ellipse with Virginia Avenue meeting Gas House Gang. The winner will face Takoma in the first game of the 13-14 A bracket series at 1 p. m. on the West Ellipse.

Labor Secretary Picks Series Teams

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, in his first radio appearance as a Cabinet officer, last night said he was "convinced both Boston teams would play in the World Series."

During questioning by three Columbia Broadcasting Company newscasters, Secretary Tobin said he further planned to ask President Truman for permission to represent the White House at the series.

"I could get to any one of the games for a dime," said the former Boston mayor.

Like Gambino Case

N. C. State Rules Out Star Back

Believing that his case is similar to that of Maryland's Lu Gambino, North Carolina State College yesterday announced it had voluntarily declared Fullback Leslie Palmer ineligible to play football this fall.

Palmer was the Nation's leading collegiate punter last year.

At the same time, State College adopted a policy of watchful waiting on the outcome of Maryland's appeal to the Southern Conference executive committee on the Gambino case.

Lu Called Ineligible

The conference president, Col. William Couper, of VMI, last week told The Washington Post that Gambino was ineligible to play for Maryland this fall because he has already played three years of varsity football.

Maryland officials yesterday contended that Palmer's case was not similar to Gambino's because Palmer played freshman football at West Virginia in 1941 while Gambino did not play freshman ball while at Indiana the same year.

Palmer played varsity football at West Virginia in 1942 and for N. C. State in 1946 and last year. Gambino played varsity ball for Indiana in 1942 and for Maryland the last two years.

It was the fact that Gambino was a varsity man in 1942 that finished his eligibility, according to Colonel Couper's interpretation of the "three-year rule."

Byrd Reiterates Stand

Dr. H. C. Byrd, Maryland president, yesterday reiterated his statement of Monday wherein he says Maryland believed Gambino was still eligible.

Dr. Byrd was misquoted Monday by The Washington Post which reported him as saying: "Under a strict interpretation of conference rules, Gambino is ineligible." What Dr. Byrd said was: "Under strict interpretation of prewar conference rules, Gambino is ineligible.

Dr. H. A. Fisher, chairman of State's athletic council, expressed the opinion that the Palmer case and the case of Lou Gambino, star Maryland back, are "identical."

About Palmer, Fisher said:

"It looks to us like he's ineligible. He played three years of varsity and one year of freshman football. . . . That's what the boy says the story is, and from his story he's ineligible. It looks like he's out."

"It's a tough blow," Dr. Fisher said of the Palmer case. "But you have to play by the rules and take your medicine."

Williams Has 3 of 17 Bosox Hits

Boston, Aug. 18 (AP).—Boston's Red Sox climbed over Philadelphia into second place today with a 17-hit attack and a 10-0 decision over the Athletics, who dropped into third place in the everchanging American League pennant fight.

A paid crowd of 24,178 yelped in glee as the Sox battered the offerings of three Philadelphia pitchers. Ted Williams and Birdie Tebbetts paced the attack with three hits each.

Eddie Joost, shortstop of the amazing A.'s, was forced to leave the game in the third inning when he aggravated his injured right hand in swinging at a third strike.

Joost, who jammed his hand while sliding into third base at St. Louis August 8, was sent to Philadelphia for X-rays and treatment by the club physician.

The Sox went ahead in their side of the first with a pair of runs—the second made possible by the hustle of Williams — and added three more in the third, four in the fifth, and their last in the eighth.

Williams' single through the vacated shortstop position, as the A's shifted against him, sent Johnny Pesky, who had scratched a hit, to third in the first inning. Vern Stephens flied to left.

Pasky faked a run for the plate, drawing a throw and Williams surprised the A's by tagging up at first and racing to second on the throw. Bobby Doerr then singled, scoring both runners.

Cleveland, Aug. 18 (AP).—Cleveland's league-leading Indians notched their seventh straight triumph and their third shutout in a row tonight, blanking the St. Louis Browns, 3 to 0, for a sweep of the two-game series.

Public Bids the Babe a Last Farewell Today

Thousands to Attend Funeral, Burial

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP).—An elderly white-haired man lifted up his grandson to look into a casket in Yankee Stadium today.

"Take a good look, sonny," he said. "You'll never see another man like him."

The bier was Babe Ruth's. The old man and the little boy were two of over 60,000 persons, many of whom journeyed hundreds of miles to pay homage to the king of baseball. They looked on his face for the last time at the rate of 100 a minute.

Funeral services will be held in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral at 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow. Francis Cardinal Spellman, one of Ruth's myriad admirers, will preside at the requiem mass.

Mrs. Claire Ruth, the Babe's widow, has asked that the public be admitted to the Gate of Heaven Cemetery, Westchester County, where the body will be placed in a receiving vault. As many of the public as can crowd in will be permitted to enter towering St. Patrick's Cathedral for the funeral services.

It is the way the Babe would have wanted it, Mrs. Ruth said.

The 57 honorary pallbearers, headed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, include noted athletes and newspaper men who knew Ruth well.

Police, anticipating one of the largest throngs ever gathered at St. Patrick's arranged a special detail of 300 men.

Ruth's funeral cortege is scheduled to leave the Universal funeral chapel at 52d st. and Lexington ave. and move toward the cathedral at 50th st. and Fifth ave. at 9:45 a. m. (EST).

Truman Tells Boys to Be Good Losers

Sixty fledgling baseball players from North Carolina called at the White House yesterday and got some advice from President Truman on how to be good losers.

One thing you learn in baseball, he told them, is that somebody has to lose.

"The loser has got to take it on the chin and be ready to win again next year," Mr. Truman advised the 8 to 14-year-old boys, who make up the four-team "Knee Pants League" in Dunn, N. C.

He cited his own experience when he went to Griffith Stadium last night to root for the Washington Senators against the New York Yankees. The Yankees trimmed the home team, but the President said he's going back next time and root again for the Senators.

The youngsters were accompanied by Herbert B. Taylor, a Dunn insurance man who organized the league 28 years ago. A few parents also were in the party.

Brownell, Maury Nee Qualify for National Amateur

210 Qualify

135 Is Low In Amateur Golf Trials

New York, Aug. 18 (AP).—A Connecticut shotmaker little known outside the East—Julius Boros of Bridgeport—blazed a five-under-par 135 today to lead scattered sectional qualifying trials for the National Amateur golf tournament at Memphis August 30 to September 4.

Tryouts at 32 centers reduced the record entry of 1230 to 210, including nine players exempt because they have won United States or British championships.

Boros, playing over the par 70 Deep Dale Country Club at Great Neck, N. Y., coupled a 66 and 69 in the 36-hole test.

Billows Is Second

In turning in the low score for the metropolitan area, the Connecticut player outshot a fast field of 68, including Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., twice National Amateur runner-up.

Billows was second with 66, 75—141. Another of the 14 metropolitan qualifiers was Frank Strafaci of Flushing, N. Y., who had 77, 70—147.

Henry Russell, 30-year-old Miami contractor, led 29 players at Miami with a score of 72, 69—141, three under par.

Another subpar performance was turned in at Atlanta where Gene Dahlbender of the Georgia city, the Southern Amateur titlist, forged a 73, 67 for a two under 140.

Young Bobby Falls Short

Bobby Jones 3d, whose dad won the U. S. Amateur five times, failed to qualify in the Atlanta test but managed to win an alternate's berth with a two-round score of 151.

Chuck Kocsis of Detroit, Michigan's amateur titleholder, toured the par-72 Detroit Club course in 72, 69—141, a 3-under-par performance to top eight qualifiers.

The nine exempt entries are Defending Champion Robert (Skee) Riegel of Upper Darby, Pa.; Frank Stranahan, 1948 British; Willie Turnesa, 1938; Stanley (Ted) Bishop, 1946; Marvin (Bud) Ward, 1939-41; Dick Chapman, 1940; Robert Swenny, jr., 1937 British; John W. Fischer, 1936, and Charles (Chick) Evans, jr., 1916-20.

Baxter, Sharkey Wrestle to Draw

Laverne Baxter and Babe Sharkey wrestled to a one-hour draw in the feature mat match last night at Turner's Arena.

In the two-man team match, Marvin Mercer and Sandor Kovacs won, two out of three falls, over Joe Komaroff and Tiger Joe Marsh. Tony Verdi pinned George Flynn after a body slam at the 21-minute marker. And Hans Kampfer was awarded a victory over Count Van Dusing when the Count was disqualified after 7 minutes.

His super-streamlined 4400-pound craft known as the San Ambrogio, has arrived in this country, and will compete in the Gold Cup classic at Detroit on August 28-29, the Harvard Trophy race around Manhattan September 12 and the President's Cup here. Mechanics accompanying it said the craft was capable of doing more than 100 miles per hour.

Life Begins at 12 for Jockey

Manchester, England, Aug. 18 (AP).—British race horse trainers start their jockeys riding at an early age.

Twelve-year-old Lester Piggott, home from school on his summer vacation, booted home Mrs. Betty Lavington's The Chase in a selling handicap at Haydock Park today.

Lester's father, Keith Piggott, former steeplechase rider, trained the horse. It was the boy's seventh public ride.

Stars Crossed Him Up

Hannover, Germany, Aug. 18 (U.P.).—Karsten Schmidt, 20, of Hamburg, today might still have been having a good time posing as an American tennis star, if he had known the number of stars in Old Glory.

Schmidt, who advertised himself widely as "the great American lawn tennis ace Frazer" touring Europe following the Olympics, was crossed up by suspicious sports writers.

Schmidt, it seemed, had not known lawn tennis was excluded from the Olympic games.

A large crowd gathered at the Hanover courts to watch "The American" perform, but he was unmasked before he got on the court. He couldn't tell newsmen how many stars there were in the American flag.

Schmidt was toted off to jail as an imposter. It left fans wondering whether he was a complete fake, or if he really could play tennis.

Cap This One!

San Mateo, Calif., Aug. 18 (AP).—The leading match of the women's Trans-Mississippi golf tournament yesterday also produced what may be the tournament's freak shot.

Ellen Kieser of San Francisco on the ninth hole drove her ball toward a crowd on the fairway. The crowd scattered, a small boy lost his hat, and the ball popped into the headpiece.

The problem of how to get the ball out of the hat without either player touching it was solved when a spectator voluntarily flipped it over and the ball rolled free. Miss Kieser was not penalized, but she lost the match, 4 and 3, to Dot Kielty, tournament medalist and cofavorite from Long Beach, Calif.

Polly Riley Wins, 5 and 3

San Mateo, Calif., Aug. 18. (AP).—Defending Trans-Mississippi women's golf champion, Polly Riley, of Fort Worth, Tex., played up to her title qualifications today to defeat Alice Bauer, of Long Beach, 5 and 3, in a second round match of the annual tournament.

The tournament medalist and favorite, Dot Kielty, of Long Beach, also moved into tomorrow's quarter-finals with a 3 and 1 victory over Mrs. Victor Shewbert of Los Angeles.

Another of the contenders from Texas, Mrs. Bettye Mims White of Dallas, rolled up her second overwhelming score when she defeated Mrs. Frances Ratliff of Bakersfield, 7 and 5. Mrs. White chalked up a 7 and 6 win in the first round yesterday.

Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., won her second-round match from Edean Anderson, Helena, Mont., 3 and 2. Miss Gunther was Trans-Mississippi runner-up last year and Miss Anderson is the Montana State champion.

Tomorrow's quarter-finals pairings

2 p. m., Dot Kielty vs. Marlene Bauer. Polly Riley vs. Dorothy Traung. Mrs. Bettye Mims White vs. Gracie De Moss. Margaret Gunther vs. Mrs. Kermit Pearson.

HBPA Sued By Kendrick

Baltimore, Aug. 18 (AP).—A Washington horse trainer filed a $200,000 damage suit today against the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) and four of its regional officers.

Wayne Kendrick of the 1900 block I st. nw., Washington, asked the damages because of "public contempt, hatred, scorn, disgrace and shame" he allegedly suffered as a result of suspension by the HBPA.

Kendrick and 10 other trainers were suspended last summer for refusing to join a strike against the Hagerstown Race Track. Several owners and trainers refused to enter horses in the meeting's final days because the management declined to increase purses.

Kendrick's suit maintained publication of his suspension resulted in damage to his business enterprises as well as "public contempt." He said the suspension also prevented him from having his horses shod at the Wheeling Downs, W. Va., race track.

The Norfolk Royals and the Greensboro Red Wings, both of the Negro American Association League, will play at Griffith Stadium Thursday night while the Washington Homestead Grays are on the road.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Vice President May Be in Cabinet Under GOP Plan

A Republican plan to create a Cabinet post for the Vice President by the reorganization of Federal agencies is revealed in an authoritative campaign biography of Earl Warren, the GOP vice presidential nominee. The book, "Earl Warren" (Prentiss-Hall, $2) was written by Irving Stone, a well-known biographer, with the approval and help of Mr. Warren.

The author lists four plans that have been studied by GOP leaders to carry out Thomas E. Dewey's pledge to Warren to make him an active assistant President, if elected.

He left no doubt that it was his understanding that both Dewey and Warren will support the fourth plan he outlined—a plan for the creation of a Department of Administration and the appointment of Warren to be its Secretary. Among the agencies that would be placed under the new Cabinet department would be:

The Atomic Energy Commission, European Recovery Administration, Civil Service Commission, Budget Bureau, the various agencies having to do with the purchase of materials and supplies, and perhaps several other independent agencies.

The author didn't specifically name them, but apparently Treasury's Bureau of Federal Supply and much of the Federal Works Agency would be placed under the proposed new department.

Stone says flatly that the proposed new department "would be acceptable" to Dewey if he's elected. And then he adds: "It would be equally acceptable to the Vice President because his duties would then be mandatory by statute, his job would be permanent within his term of office and he would be free to work out a long-range program."

However, the author says this one objection has been raised—that the Vice President, as Secretary of Administration, would be the one Cabinet officer whom the President could not fire. But he hastens to add it would be hard to conceive of a better working team than Dewey and Warren.

In his book, Stone tells of how Warren agreed to run for Vice President. He said that Dewey called Warren to his hotel rooms at 4:15 o'clock in the morning after he (Dewey) had been nominated. The New York Governor told Warren that he wanted him as his running mate. The Californian replied:

"Tom, I can't spend my years just calling balls and strikes in the Senate."

"I wouldn't expect you to, Earl," came back Dewey, "I want you to be a partner in the Administration."

"Well, if it's to be a working job," said Warren, "I'm willing to do it."

Warren was nominated quickly and Dewey announced that Warren would devote a large part of his time to the administration of Government. He said that Warren would sit in as a Cabinet member and would be a working assistant President. But how Warren, if elected, was to be given new duties that would be both constitutional and practical was a problem.

Stone reveals that the first informal plan was based on the idea of a Cabinet secretariet. It was suggested that the Vice President be placed in charge of all domestic departments: Treasury, Justice, Interior, Commerce, Labor, Agriculture and Postoffice. This would free the President to devote his time to foreign affairs and military matters.

As the author points out, the laws give the secretaries the authority to operate their own departments and the Cabinet officers might resent any intrusion by the Vice President into their domains. Also, that Cabinet jobs wouldn't be as attractive if the secretaries couldn't work directly with the President. So apparently, this proposal was junked.

Also discarded, Stone indicates, were Plans 1 and 2. Under Plan 1, the President would issue an order which would give the Vice President broad powers, and the Congress would determine by law the Vice President's duties under Plan 2. Then Stone writes:

"The complications, difficulties and objections to the first three approaches have now led serious thinkers to a fourth and highly feasible approach which would have the virtue of being an effective opening wedge in the reconstitution of the office and at the same time would avoid most of the objections and limitations of the first three methods.

"It has been suggested that there be set up another executive department to be known as the Administrative Department which would encompass various agencies of Government which are not now within any existing departments. For example, the Bureau of the Budget operates directly out of the President's office, and yet the President has little time to give it.

"The personnel and Civil Service agencies do not fall under the jurisdiction of any one Cabinet officer. Neither does the vast operation of procurement of materials and supplies. All of these important functions could be combined into a single department of which the Vice President would be the head.

"Into the realm of the Secretary of Administration could fall the new programs which constantly arise, and do not by their nature fall logically within the jurisdiction of any older departments, springing as they often do out of needs which could not have been anticipated. Such programs include the Atomic Energy Commission and the European Recovery Program which now operate directly under the President."

In the process of being eradicated, Stone writes, are "minor obstacles" which might prevent the best men from wanting to be Vice President such as (1) the $20,000 salary which he says should be raised substantially, and (2) no official home for the Vice President here.

In reviewing Warren's record as Governor, Stone writes that he "rid the Civil Service board of politicians and put in trained personnel experts" and that he placed the deputies of the Attorney General's Office under Civil Service.

He tells a story of how Warren called to California to tell his 13-year-old son Bobby that he had been nominated for Vice President. There was a moment of silence on the line. Then Bobby asked: "Is that good?"

D. C. Board Gets Cashier Case Today

Formal Charges Due For Presentation in Mishandling of $572

Washington's Commissioners today are slated to review formal charges aimed at dismissal of a 38-year-old District cashier who took and then returned $572 in tax collection funds.

Papers in the case were being prepared by officials yesterday for presentation to a formal Commissioners' meeting at 10 a. m. today. Also being drafted was a formal notice to the cashier, to which his status as a war veteran entitles him under a 1944 veterans' preference law, officials said.

Under the act, the cashier must be given an opportunity to reply to the charges.

Commissioner Guy Mason had announced that the cashier's name would be made public when the charges are sent to him. Copies of the charges are also to be forwarded to the office of George Morris Fay, United States attorney for the District.

Falls Church Home Burns To the Ground

When Mrs. Betty Blakslee and her 3-year-old son returned from a shopping trip yesterday, they found their Falls Church home burned to the ground.

The five-room, two-story frame cottage at 1518 S. West st. caught fire early in the afternoon. Firemen arrived at the isolated home minutes after they got the alarm to see the roof collapse into a raging inferno.

Mrs. Blakslee's husband, Marine Corps Master Sergt. Robert Blakslee, was notified at the Navy Annex in Arlington, and rushed home. Said he, watching firemen play hoses on the smoking ruins: "There goes everything we own—except the car, a rug we had in storage, and the clothes on our backs." Everything, that is, but a pair of their son Donald's pants, hanging on a clothesline in the yard.

The family arranged to stay at the home of Mrs. Blackslee's sister, Mrs. Gustav E. Larson, 8823 Ridge rd., Bethesda, until they can find a place to live. Mrs. Blakslee said she had left the house in perfect order about 11 a. m. yesterday to shop in the Fort Myer commissary. When she returned about 1:45 p. m. and saw the flames, firemen already were on their way.

The burned-out family had rented the home from David H. Luttrell, whose granddaughter, Jane Hastie, was the first to give the alarm yesterday. Neither Mrs. Blakslee nor the firemen were able to explain how the fire started.

Prince Georges Officials Find Bond Buyers

Prince Georges County yesterday found purchasers for the $650,000 issue of metropolitan district bonds for which no bids had been received Tuesday.

The issue was divided between the bond houses of Alexander Brown Co. of Baltimore and the Kidder, Peabody Co. of New York. The two bond houses agreed to accept the bonds at par value with 3 per cent interest per annum.

The issue, payable in 25 years, beginning in 1949, $18,000 maturing annually for the first five years, and $28,000 annually for the remainder of the period.

Three per cent is the maximum interest payable under State law. County officials declined to state reasons why the bonds had found no bidders but others said the low rate of interest and the fact that they are metropolitan bonds probably had much to do with the failure to receive bids.

The bonds will provide $500,000 for road construction and improvement in the metropolitan district of the county and $150,000 for construction of a building for the County Engineer's office and the Prince Georges County regional office in the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission near Magruder Park in Hyattsville, and park uses.

New Finance Setup Aim in Alexandria

Incoming Council Member Will Ask Separate Bureau To End Criticism

Establishment of a separate financing department in Alexandria, to corect alleged deficiencies in the present revenue-accounting system, will be asked by Marshall J. Beverley, an incoming member of the City Council.

Beverley, who assumes office when the new seven-man council-at-large takes over on September 1, said yesterday he would initiate steps to create the new finance department as a means of eliminating conditions which were cited in a critical study of city finances by the University of Virginia Bureau of Public Administration.

The report, final phase of the bureau's study of Alexandria finances, termed revenue accounting methods in the city "totally inadequate," and called for reorganization of financial administration methods in the city. It resulted from a study of taxes which the city shares jointly with the State, Federal and State grants, and other local sources of revenue.

"There now exists virtually no organization of the government for handling the many and complex sources of municipal revenue," the report stated.

The tax experts who conducted the survey pointed out they had called for a separate financing department in an earlier report last week, but the council refused to take action despite a recommendation by its finance committee that the department be established.

At that time, the council voted to place all departments under the city manager's supervision except the accounting officer.

Location of an accounting office outside the executive branch, the surveyers said, "is a negation of one of the first principles of the council-manager form of government."

"In any form of government, such placement violates the dictates of administrative common sense," they added.

Under the present system, the report pointed out, there is no fixed responsibility to assure the city's receiving its full amount of shared taxes and other local revenues. Members of the survey staff had to contact State officials to determine the city's share of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board profits and other revenues, being unable to obtain the figures from local sources.

The experts also said some sources of taxation available in the city have never been tapped, and urged that the finance committee direct its attention to "development of a reliable and flexible system of supplementary revenues for the city."

Beverley, who criticized the city's financial structure in a talk on the Junior Chamber of Commerce radio forum last Sunday, said he was in full accord with the bureau's findings.

In announcing he would press for action to establish the proposed finance department after taking office, he said he favored any reorganization of the city's financial program which would give the taxpayers "any and all information concerning the city's finances."

Ruling Studied In Auto Credit Official's Case

Rossen Is Accused Of Misrepresentation In Insurance Sale

Charges of violation of District insurance laws by the secretary-treasurer of an auto credit firm were taken under advisement yesterday by Albert F. Jordan, District superintendent of insurance.

The charges were brought by Jordan against Mark H. Rossen, official of the Motor Credit Co., Inc., at 523 H st. ne., upon complaint of Mrs. Bernard L. Mellberg, 4009 Branch ave. se. Mrs. Mellberg testified that an insurance policy she took out when she obtained a loan on her car was never given to her.

Rossen, who handles the insurance work for Motor Credit, was charged with misrepresenting the terms of the policy to Mrs. Mellberg; failure to give her a copy of the policy; and misrepresenting himself as an individual in applying for an insurance license when he actually was trading for the credit firm, which is a corporation.

Attorney William R. Lichtenberg, counsel for Rossen and the loan corporation, admitted Rossen had misrepresented himself, but declared it was "not willful." He urged that the auto loan official be given a "warning."

Lichctenbgerg pleaded that the withholding of the policy from Mrs. Mellberg was lawful; that the insurance amendment passed by Congress in May which requires that insurance purchasers be given a copy of the policy, did not obtain in this case. Mrs. Mellberg's policy was taken out more than a year ago.

Lichtenberg also denied that there had been misrepresentation of the terms of the policy to Mrs. Mellberg. It was brought out that she believed she had purchased a $50 deductible policy and that the policy actually was $25 deductible.

Truman Gets Member Card In Boys' Club

The No. 1 public figure in America became the No. 1 honorary member of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club yesterday.

President Truman accepted a gold membership card at the White House during a 20-minute meeting with Attorney General Tom Clark, also an honorary member, and club officials.

Mr. Truman cited the contribution made by the Boys Club in solving problems of underprivileged and delinquent youngsters and offered his assistance in future activities of the organization.

Also present for the presentation were Maj. Robert Barrett, superintendent of police; Robert C. Simmons, president of the club's board of directors, and Ralph Pittman, Washington attorney and also a board member.

Washington Gets '48 City Directory

Smith is a fine name, as the new Washington City Directory, just out, will attest.

Smith is such a fine name it took R. L. Polk & Co. of Richmond, directory publishers, 58 columns to list all the Smiths who live in Washington.

They only needed 38 columns for the Jones boys and girls, 41 columns for all the Browns, and less than 13 columns for Greens.

The new directory, first since 1943, carries 543,176 names. The last directory had 537,184 names. A transfer company employed by the directory publishers has been delivering the books here for the past week by zone numbers, and firm officials predict it will be "at least" two more weeks before all those who have ordered the books get delivery.

The A & A Company, a roofing, siding, storm window firm, gets the distinction of "leading off" in the first postwar directory, while Jose A. Zubillaga, a State Department clerk, is the last to be named.

The business classifications this time go from Abstracts of Title to Yeast Manufacturers, and include such businesses as those which sell bananas wholesale, baby-sit, make brassieres, and do whatever you do with herbs and roots.

For what significance it may have, the new directory lists laundries en masse. Last time, Chinese laundries were in a separate category.

Newspaper correspondents reported in the directory have shrunk from 106 to 27 during the five-year period, while retail oyster and seafood dealers went down from 23 to three in number. There also are fewer paperhangers.

There was a sharp rise in phonographic and record dealers over the years, and more taxicab services are listed now than in 1943. There are fewer shoe repairers and sheet metal workers.

The Washington Board of Trade, which prepared a summary of Washington as an introduction to the book, calls Washington one of the largest railroad centers in the world, with the only railway station in the United States authorized by act of Congress.

A new feature of this year's directory is a postal unit guide, including a postal zone map and reproduction of street car and bus routes of the Capital Transit Co. Business addresses and residences having telephones are designated by symbol in one section of the directory.

The new book is larger, and is printed on thinner paper stock. Since the book arrived in Washington about a week ago, the Polk company's library at 902 F st. nw. has been besieged by persons who wanted to use the book and did not wish to wait for its delivery. Polk hopes, now that World War II is over, it will be able to get back on an annual schedule of directory publication.

Three Drown As Car Plunges Into Lake

Washington Man, 2 Baltimore Women, Die in Md. Tragedy

A veteran employe of the Naval Research Laboratory and two Baltimore women were drowned early yesterday when his auto crashed through an iron fence into Baltimore's Lake Clifton and sank in 16 feet of water.

The Washingtonian was George E. Burch, 51, of 2349 S st. se., an instrument maker at the laboratory for about 20 years. The other victims were Mrs. Laura Foard, 21, and her sister-in-law, Frances Foard, 26, of Baltimore.

Only occupant of the car to escape with his life was Edward Foard, 27, husband of Laura. He told police he rolled down a rear window in Burch's coupe and swam ashore.

Burch Was Driving

According to police, Burch was driving the car when it plunged down a 40-foot grade in Clifton Park, a Baltimore municipal park, and through an iron fence into the water.

They said Burch's daughter, a resident of the city, informed them the Washingtonian was visiting the Foards and drove off with them early Tuesday night. The accident occurred about 1 a. m. yesterday.

While rescue workers grappled for the car, Burch's body is reported to have floated to the surface about two hours after the accident. The women were found inside the car when it was raised about half an hour later.

In Washington, a guard on Highway Bridge suffered a possible fracture of his right hip yesterday when struck by a car as he attempted to halt traffic prior to opening the bridge for river traffic.

He was Harold Chavis, 30, of the Dunbar Hotel, 15th and U sts. nw. Police said a car driven by Clarence L. Bahr, jr., 17, of 622 25th st. S., Arlington, struck the guard when a car behind Bahr rammed into his as he tried to stop.

The rear car was operated by Thomas H. Ambrose, 30, of Langley Field, Va. Chavis was taken to Providence Hospital. The accident occurred at 1:43 p. m.

In another accident yesterday, a motorcycle driven by Harvey P. Mangum, 24, of 1914 H st. nw., collided with an auto driven by Thomas Brunson, 35, of 925 O st. nw., at 10 a. m. at Massachusetts ave. and 6th st. nw. Mangum was admitted to Casualty Hospital with possible head injuries.

8 D. C. Veterans Win Beach Lots Near Pensacola

Eight Washington World War II veterans yesterday won Florida beach lots near Pensacola at a Bureau of Land Management drawing.

The 350 Florida lots were made available by the Department of Interior for use as home or cabin sites under the Federal Small Tract Act on June 9. Because more than 800 applied for them, the drawing was held. The lots are valued at from $50 to $200 and the winners have an option to buy them after the first year.

Winners were:

Harry E. Kazey, 1921 Kalorama rd. nw.; Stephen B. Lane, 2800 Terrace rd. se.; Gordon K. Pyles, 5060 Temple Hills rd. se.; Maynard B. Man's Death Here From Polio First For 1948

William D. Shisler, 20, of Alexandria, Bulbar Type Victim; 3 More Cases Listed

William D. Shisler, 20-year-old Alexandrian who died Tuesday at Gallinger Hospital, was Greater Washington's first polio death this year.

Mr. Shisler

New reports of three polio cases brought the official District total yesterday to 71. They included a 20-year-old man stationed at Walter Reed and admitted there for polio August 11; a 41-year-old man, resident of the 3300 block of Nebraska ave. nw., admitted to Georgetown August 1, and a 29-year-old man from the 800 block of South Arlington Mills dr., Arlington, Va., admitted to Gallinger Tuesday.

35 Cases in District

Of the 71 district polio cases, of which Shisler's was one, 35 have been District residents and 36 from nearby counties.

Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital, said that Shisler died about 9:45 p. m. Tuesday, the day after his admission there for treatment of bulbar polio.

Dr. Sweeney explained that the bulbar polio attacks centers in the brain which control the vital functions of the body like the heart beat, breathing and swallowing. He said Shisler was on the critical list from the time he entered the hospital.

Health department officials said that polio last year claimed the lives of three District residents and one nonresident here.

A native of York, Pa., Shisler had lived in Alexandria for the past 7 years. He attended George Washington High School there for two years, then in 1943 went to work in the Naval Research Laboratory. In 1946 he enlisted in the Navy, and was assigned at once to duty in his civilian job at the laboratory. He received an honorable discharge, and continued there as a draftsman until the illness which led to his death.

He had complained of not feeling well for about a month, according to his sister, Mrs. Matthew Kemp of Atlanta, Ga. Then on August 9, he was sent home from work with a temperature. His fever was accompanied by a sore throat, and symptoms that appeared generally like those of grippe. On August 12 there was a tentative diagnosis of tonsilitis. Finally in the hours before his admission to the hospital there came a constriction of the throat accompanied by violent nausea.

Besides his sister, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Shisler, with whom he lived at 3407 Commonwealth ave., Alexandria.

A requiem mass for Mr. Shisler will be said at St. Rita's Church in Alexandria at 10 a. m. Friday. He will be buried in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Polio Cases on Increase

Infantile paralysis cases still are increasing, but for the second straight week the seven-day total dropped behind the corresponding week in 1946, the second worst polio year on record.

Cases reported this year have set an all-time high through August 14—a count of 8439 cases, against 7025 for a similar period in 1946.

The Public Health Service reiterated that the disease is still epidemic in parts of only three States and said:

"Although several of the other States have reported more cases than normally would be expected, they are generally scattered, and there is no particular concentration or alarming incidence (in those States.)"

For the week ended August 14, there were 1411 new cases reported for the whole Nation, compared with 1239 the week before, 284 for the corresponding week last year and 1575 for the same span in 1946.

The disease still is epidemic in parts of North Carolina, Texas and California

Thief Steals $31 From Policewoman

Herman Gaston Brown, 36, no fixed address, was found guilty yesterday in Municipal Court of stealing the pocketbook and lunch of a policewoman.

According to evidence presented by Assistant United States Attorney Harvey M. Spear, Park Policewoman Grace H. Judy was assigned to undercover duty in the Ellipse Tuesday afternoon. She spread her blanket and calmly began eating sandwiches.

At that point, she espied some youths acting suspiciously around some automobiles and went off to seek a better observation point. She returned to find her blanket, but her lunch and pocketbook containing $31 were missing.

Meanwhile, some baseball players on the Ellipse were looking for a thief, who had taken the civilian garb of the players while they were in baseball uniform.

And then who should show up around the diamond but Brown, police were told. According to player James W. Graham, of Fairfax, Va., Brown was wearing the sport coat, short shirt and trousers of another player. A policeman was called and arrested Brown who also had the pocketbook in his possession.

Judge Armond W. Scott found Brown guilty of the pocketbook-lunch theft. The case was continued two weeks for sentence.

Coffee Shop Cuts Prices

Philip Schlein, 38, manager of the YMCA coffee shop at 18th and G sts. nw., has started a 10 per cent cutback on prices charged in his restaurant.

The Schlein theory, described as similar to the Newburyport Plan tried last year, is that reducing prices stimulates business which increases volume and makes up for the profit netted from higher prices.

Schlein hopes that other restaurateurs will pick up the idea so that a general price cut may be effected in Washington.

Pickpocket Picks Visitor

A 72-year-old visitor from California ran a snappy three-block race with a suspected pickpocket late Tuesday, but failed to save his $350 bankroll.

William Lenthall of Pasadena, Calif., attended the "Clark Griffith Night" baseball game. On boarding a streetcar when he left the stadium, Lenthall felt his pocketbook being lifted, he told police.

"There's the guy who got it," shouted a bystander. Lenthall saw a man running and gave chase for three blocks until the suspect entered a house in the 1900 block of 8th st. nw.

Police picked up seven occupants of the house, but all denied knowledge of the pocketbook or of the $450. Lenthall is visiting his sister, Mrs. Helen M. Selvig of 1410 M st. nw.

DDD Is in Again

David Douglas Davenport, 32, Union Station's bootlegger, who gave his residence as 1415 Rhode Island ave. nw., was charged with four counts of keeping and selling whisky in the railroad terminal early yesterday.

Burned by Cleaning Fluid

An Arlington mother was burned in a flash fire when cleaning fluid in her basement ignited yesterday. She was reported in satisfactory condition at Doctor's Hospital with first and second degree burns of the arms and legs.

Firemen said Mrs. Viola Jones of 1200 N. Livingston st. had been cleaning clothing with the fluid when it was ignited by some undetermined cause.

Her son, Reece Irving Jones, jr., about 5, was not in the basement when the flash fire occurred. Her husband, who firemen said is employed at Cedar Point, Md., was at work when the accident occurred. No damage was done to the home by the fire.

359 Days for Sausage

Richard A. Lee, 51, of 225 C st. sw., will spend the next 359 days living on fare more simple than the cocktail sausage he stole but never got to eat.

Lee was convicted of stealing a carton of the sausage Tuesday from a loading platform at 501 12th st. sw. Lee's record showed that he had a score of previous arrests for petty larceny. The 359-day jail term was given by Judge Armond Scott of Municipal Court.

Held on Morals Charge

John W. Jacobs, 30, of 5501 Jay st. ne., was held yesterday under $3000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of committing an indecent act against a 9-year-old girl.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert E. Short produced evidence that on July 24, Jacobs sent the girl's 11-year-old brother to get some chewing gum and then began molesting the girl on the bench in her front yard.

Mockingbird Goes No'th

A bulletin just published by the Smithsonian Institution here tells of the mocker being seen with increasing frequency in the North from Illinois to New England.

Attributing the northward movement to a possible "overflow from its normal range," the bulletin says they may now be considered a resident-bird of lower New England as well as of the magnolia-and-cypress country of the South.

Emblem Enjoinder

A temporary District Court order was issued yesterday enjoining the United States Automobile Association from using an emblem similar to that of the American Automobile Association.

The American Automobile Association has been using "AAA" in an oval for its symbol. The other organization uses "AA" in an oval.

The court order prevents the use of AA in any form which causes confusion with the AAA symbol. The injunction, which remains in effect until the case is heard on its merits, was issued by Justice Richmond B. Keech.

Father of 10 Evicted, No Place to Go

Ten children and no place to live — that is the problem that faces a foot-weary, anxiety-stricken Hillside, Md., painter, his wife and their brood.

Day before yesterday their furniture was piled high on the street outside the small house at 1327 59th ave., Hillside, where they have been living the past 11 months—evicted!

The reason: the owner wanted the house for his own use.

Constant Rebuffs

And although he had a 60-day notice, the father, Foster P. Russ, walked the streets from real estate office to real estate office only to get rebuffed when he mentioned his 10 children.

The children range in age from 3 weeks old to 16 years, and two of them are twins who weighed 20 pounds at birth, the heaviest twins on record.

Since the eviction, seven of the children have been taken in temporarily by Russ' brother, Robert S. Russ, 1400 55th ave. The brother, however, has only a four-room house and six children of his own.

Infant at Hospital

Two of the other children have gone to live with Russ' sister, and the 3-week-old infant is still at Children's Hospital but is expected to be sent "home"—if it had a home—today.

Russ said he paid $40 a month rent at the house from which he was evicted, but can go as high at $65. He doesn't know what to do, unless some kind-hearted landlord who doesn't have any aversions to 10 children comes to his aid.

Wife Thinks That She and Wonderful Husband Are Drifting Apart in Feeling and Interests; She Is Bothered by Sense of Love Unrequited

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We have been married 10 years, my husband has worked his way up to a substantial income, we have all the desired conveniences, and have been absolutely happy except for two things.

(1) We haven't been blessed with children. (2) Our roots are in the East, where we own a home, and I had hoped to return to our many interests there after the war, but Rod elected to keep his good job in San Diego.

Somewhat grudgingly I assented to this, with much fretting at first, I admit; but Rod was very sweet about trips back East whenever I wished, and now I'm adjusted, so that's not the difficulty. Our big problem is that we are drawing slowly apart in feeling and interests,—and I wonder whether my postwar pouting started this drift.

Rod has been a wonderful husband and in other years we shared all recreations, including friends, trips, shows, etc.; but when we go out together nowadays there are long silences and no sense of sharing. We just don't "click" any more. We have both grown irritable and apologetic by degrees, despite interludes of trying valiantly to regain rapport.

Wants to Handle Problem Wisely

MY HUSBAND says he loves me as much as he "could ever love anyone," but that is cold comfort after nearly 10 years' accustomedness to every evidence of deep love and affection; and I have begun to feel like a parasite in relation to him, although I am a good economical housekeeper.

I have a good education, I look and dress better than many women of 40; I am interested in everything; and I have a profession to which I could return and make my own living. But the fact is, I love him more than ever and wouldn't want another sort of life without him.

However, if he has lost pleasure in my company, have I a moral right to stay with him? He says, "How could we get a divorce?"—as much as to say, "What reason do we have?" I've convinced myself there is no triangle factor and perhaps I am being overly sentimental. Do we need love after 40? Please advise me before it's too late to meet the problem wisely.

R. L.

Thinks to Run From Her Fears

DEAR R. L.: You say you've convinced yourself there is no triangle here, which implies that your intuition strongly suggests the existence of a love-rival offstage, whereas your mind rejects the idea as too painful to contemplate.

In all probability your hunch is sound, and it were better to look it in the eye, in your private assessment of the situation, rather than try to banish the thought as "unthinkable."

To surmount a difficulty, one must be aware of factors involved; and it seems to me you put your finger on the origin of the marital rift, when you speculate that it may have begun about the time you were fighting Rod's decision to stay in San Diego, and exacting various trips "back East" to assuage your fretting.

It seems unlikely that a man tied to a job could break away for transcontinental trips with his wife sporadically, hence I infer that you went without Rod occasionally, possibly even with peevish intent to leave him lonely and neglected briefly, as punishment for displeasing you.

Be Calm, Generous During This Phase

IN SUCH CASE, it is conceivable that during your absence he might have chanced on a congenial woman willing to share his evenings, who amiably salved the wounds you had dealt and inadvertently or artfully weaned his thoughts from you,—with the result that, on your return, the best he could give you was a negative welcome and perfunctory solicitude.

As I get the picture, he is amatively agog over somebody else at present, though still deeply attached to you by bonds of habit and intermingled experience. He is vexed with your company, preferring another's, and you resent the end of the honeymoon, hence the edgy temper of your dealings nowadays.

For advice: Stop taxing Rod about his feelings. Stop pressing him for adulation; stop clocking his pulse, figuratively speaking. In brief, stop forcing trouble. Take for granted the marriage will last, love him fully in unasking way during this phase, counting it a blessing that you are his wife and morally privileged to care for him, and gradually he will respond in kind,—and a more mature, more secure, more deeply married unity will evolve.

How to Remove Ink From Cloth

I would like advice on how to remove ink from a table runner. Practically a bottle of ink tipped over on it. It is crocheted of coarse cotton thread, so absorbed a lot of ink. I have soaked it about 24 hours in buttermilk. Much has come out but the large spot is still black. H. O. O.

It is not always possible to remove ink stains completely from crocheted fabrics, but you should be able to lighten them and if the runner was white, possibly even remove them. Sometimes several methods must be used before a successful one does the job. Pour glycerine or one of the soapless shampoos onto the stain. Rub between the hands and rinse. Continue washing with glycerine until no more ink is removed. Allowing the runner to soak in the glycerine and water solution may help to remove the ink more completely. If some stain remains after this and the runner is white, use a bleach. Use a household bleach (following the directions which come with it), or use sodium perborate. Add four tablespoons of the perborate to one pint of soapy water and allow to stand for an hour. If all of the stain is not removed, repeat. Rinse thoroughly.

I have about 1½ pounds of mixed preserved fruits (stuffed dates, candied figs, etc.) which have dried out somewhat with age. Is it possible to soak them in some type of sirup to regain lost moisture and grind them for use in a fruit cake? If this is not possible, what other use might be made of fruit confections of this sort? E. J. F.

You may be able to restore the fruit to its original freshness by steaming it. Place in a wire strainer and suspend over a pan of boiling water. A lid placed over the strainer to retain moisture as it boils will hasten the process. When freshened, place in a closed container to keep fresh until eaten. Or, if you wish to use them in cooking, cut the fruit finely with scissors, place in a glass jar and pour sirup or heavy fruit juice on it. There should be only enough juice to moisten the fruit. Allow to stand a day or two before using. Prepared in this way, the fruit would be fine for use in cookies (be sure to drain any remaining moisture from it before using), puddings, or fruit cake as you suggest.

To Be Attache in Brussells

Alice Hager to Tell U. S. Democracy's Story in Europe

By Peggy Preston

THE STORY of American democracy needs to be heard and understood by the peoples of the world. In the telling of this saga lies our hope for peace and continuance of the way of life that many of us complacently accept as inviolable.

For Alice Rogers Hager, author, reporter and aviation expert, that is reason enough to close one chapter in her brilliant career and open a new one. In the latter she will serve her country as information officer, with the rank of Attache, at the American Embassy in Brussels. Prime purpose of her job: to help Europeans know and understand Americans and their Government.

"If we want to keep the life we have here at home, it is up to us to get out and work for it. It is a job as important as anything we have undertaken," is how Mrs. Hager explains her vital interest in her new post.

When she assumed her duties at the State Department a short time ago she became one of the few members of her sex to attain a top-notch rank in the foreign service public affairs field. Only six other women have received similar appointments. But when Alice Hager sails for the Belgium capital on September 24, she leaves behind her a record of attainment that proves her fitness for her present job.

ALICE ROGERS HAGER

An aviation enthusiast, she has probed remote corners of the world by plane, and recorded what she saw in inumerable newspaper stories, magazine articles, and several books. In all she has flown a half-million miles on reporting assignments.

During the war she went overseas as correspondent for Skyways Magazine, a periodical for which she has been Washington representative for six years. Her travels took her deep into the C. B. I. theater where she covered air forces. Her headquarters were with the Fouteenth Air Force in Kunming, China, and from there she journeyed to other remote sections of the Far East. Her reporting assignment finished, she printed war experiences in a book entitled "Wings for the Dragon."

Here in Washington she has been widely known in publishing circles. In the '30's she was aviation correspondent for the North American Newspaper Alliance. From 1940 to 1942 she was chief of Public Information of the Civil Aeronautics Board and last year when the Seventieth Air Force Group was adopted she was a consultant to the Joint Congressional Aviation Policy Board. Among the offices she has held has been that of president of the Women's National Press Club.

Of the many books she has written Alice Hager is probably proudest of her latest, "Washington, the City of Destiny," which is due to reach the book stalls in January. A picture book, it was done in collaboration with photographer Jackie Martin. The text is limited and concise, and according to its authors it tells a story dear to their hearts. In it is traced the picure of democracy in action, how our Government works and how the people are affected by it.

This versatile writer has even tried her hand at fiction. In April she published her first book for girls, "Janice, Airline Hostess," and recently completed her second, "Canvas Castle."

In addition to these varied accomplishments, our new Information Officer has managed to raise a family. When she sails for her two-year assignment abroad, she'll be saying goodby to two married daughters and four grandchildren.

Gaily Costumed Visitors To Ask State Department To Aid Romanian Kin

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THOUGH the State Department Building is built in a section of town affectionately known as "Foggy Bottom," it's a very staid place. However, on Friday its surface calm will be prettily ruffled by the descent of some 25 women, Americans of Romanian descent, dressed in their most beautiful national costumes. They will come from Cleveland and Detroit, where there are large Romanian colonies, and all are members of the American-Romanian National Association.

Their State Department visit will be a formal call on Llwellyn Thompson, deputy director for European Affairs, to petition him to help in every way possible their relatives isolated behind Romania's Iron Curtain. Later they'll assemble at a dinner party and on Saturday all will be entertained at a cocktail party by Mr. and Mrs. Alexandre Cretzianu.

Mr. Thompson, who is more familiarly known as Tommy, is not only one of the State Department's brightest but is also one of Washington's more pleasing bachelors. He goes in for bow ties but otherwise has no visible eccentricities except a flair for listening rather than talking at Washington's more discursive social gatherings.

NOTES FROM ALL OVER: Anticipating a less sedentary life this department recently purchased one of those Swiss-made, featherweight Hermes typewriters. Opening it for the first time we found a sheet of seagreen paper in the roller with a typed headline, "Eassais d'ecriture"—in other words visible proof the machine could write. Underneath were several lines of jumbled letters and at the very bottom, neatly typed, a plaintive sentence: "Zoe ma grande fille veut que je boive ce whiskey dont je ne veux pas," or "Zoe my gal wants me to drink whiskey and I don't want to." We'd like to contact the expensively bibulous Zoe and the Sad Sack operator who worked on Hermes machine No. 507504!

ANGLO-SAXON SECTION: Latest but undoubtedly well known addition for Churchilliana collectors starts with Emanuel Shinwell, former Minister of Fuel (and no favorite of the former Prime Minister's), asking for loan of tuppence to telephone a friend. "Here, take sixpence," snapped Churchill, "and call 'em all up!"

SPREAD OF 'VERMIN': Mr. Aneurin Bevan, Minister of Health, indiscreetly labeled those of Tory persuasion as "vermin." One dark night, soon after, his house was smeared with whitewash signs, "Villa Vermin." Next move was labeling all Tory members of the House of Lords "Vermin in Ermine." Now the term "Verminite" has caught on, is most used of contemporary British slang, and makes conversation for once sound racy.

Tax Dodging Dodgers

DODGING taxes is a subject fascinating to almost everyone. In much-rationed Britain several dodges have been evolved which government tax sleuths, so far, can't put a finger on. First, every penny deposited in banks is taxable except sums acquired by gambling. It's figured, one supposes, that a gambler loses as often as he gains. Suppose, for instance, a British truck driver, given 60 gas coupons, uses only 40 on a run, sells the remainder and keeps up this performance until a tidy sum is amassed. This money is hot, he can't account for it legally. But he can do several things with it. First, he goes to a bookie (bookies are legal in Britain), chooses a horse which he's assured is certain to lose, hands over, say, the equivalent of $2000. He comes back again, picks out a winner, puts up an additional $500. He comes back for a third time, puts $100 on another certain loser. This is how it works. The bookie takes the money all right, but writes down the horse's name after the race is run. Thus, he gives the truck driver a receipt for having lost $2000, a receipt for having won a $500 bet, the third bet is the bookie's commission. With mythical good odds garnered from the $500, say 4 to 1, plus a receipt for having lost $2000, he can deposit a check for his gains, with little chance of being found out, his original $2000 less the $100 commission.

To Stay Young

Find Out What Slows You Down

By Ida Jean Kain

"Today a man of 60 may be as young, vigorous and vital as the average man of 40. On the other hand, he may present the common picture of the man of 80—old, weak and miserable." These two widely divergent possibilities, and the highly attractive prospect of the first, are discussed by Dr. C. Ward Crampton in the Public Affairs pamphlet "Live Long and Like It."

Geriatrics is the branch of medical science that deals with aging and the aged. It is concerned less with the treatment of the ills of those already old than with the postponement and happy fulfillment of age. Its purpose, Dr. Crampton explains, is to add more life to the years, as well as more years to life.

Growing old is an uneven sort of proposition. Dr. Crampton points out that a 60-year-old man may have a 40-year-old heart, 50-year-old kidneys and an 80-year-old liver. A specialist can determine what is slowing the patient down, but the customary thorough examination for disease is only the beginning. "In addition to the discovery of illness and its cure," says Dr. Crampton, "the geriatric examination discloses all signs and conditions of age, and plans to correct, remove or ease them. But its chief purpose is working out the kinds of food and medicine necessary to make life strong, serene and vivid."

Dr. Crampton cracks down hard on excess fat, for "overweight shortens life by adding burdens to the heart and circulation . . . lean men live longer, remain young, active, healthy and vital longer."

Another antiaging precedure is exercise. This authority tells us that while exercise throughout life is best, the neglected man can do something for himself at 60 or even later. He advocates exercises which give a man a high head, a flat abdomen and a capable, well-trained heart, but, he advises, exercise should be based on a physician's examination.

This geriatric service takes in a man's worries, hopes and plans, too. As Dr. Crampton says, the mind and body can aid each other in many ways and in many ways they are at the mercy of each other—knowledge of these things opens the pathway to a fuller, longer life.

It is exciting to read how geriatrics can do much to give "safety, serenity and power" to the sixties, and start a man "with the happiest promise" for his seventies. And according to our authority, the future promises even greater improvement. Medical science is truly making it possible for us to live long . . . and like it very much.

Flying The Nursery Run

The hostess greeted the passengers as they boarded the plane to make the nonstop flight from Washington to Chicago. With the passengers safely tucked in, she remarked to the captain of the Capitaliner that he was a full-fledged pilot of a flying nursery. There were 15 babies aboard!

Jeanine Crocco of 519 Bashford lane, Alexandria, Va., had never counted that many babies on a single flight since she joined Capital Airlines as a hostess in 1942. About nine youngsters were first-trippers and now have 3½ hours flying time to their credit. The children ranged in age from 8 months to 4 years.

"One mother had her four children with her," said Miss Crocco. "The youngest was 8 months and the oldest about 4 years. She was a Navy wife and came up from Norfolk to join her husband at his new post in Chicago."

Miss Crocco regarded the trip as uneventful. She admitted, however, that she was kept busy heating bottles, feeding babies and holding the youngsters while their mothers had lunch. "When I got off that plane," Miss Crocco reported, "I had cut so many steaks in tiny pieces that I found myself slicing my own steak in baby-size portions."

The Capital hostess has dubbed the Washington-Chicago flight "The Nursery Run." She says there are more babies on this flight than on any other route flown by Capital. According to Miss Crocco, most of them are children of Navy men, en route to join their fathers at Midwest and West Coast stations.

The 65c rate is applicable for 9 (nine) months after the original issuance of the student certificate; thereafter, the regular part-time rate of 85c per hour shall be paid. Overtime rate: $1.12½ per hour for working time in excess of 40 hours per week, which is time and one-half of the minimum rate. THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Weep No More My Lady (We Do It for You)

Alan McLaughlin of 1471 Irving st. nw. wonders if you've seen the clever directions printed on the label of York County Dutch Brand stewed onions.

The housewives are informed that all they have to do is "drain and heat as desired. We have shed all the tears and taken all the trouble to prepare these onions for you."

MISCELLANY

Short story: One of our District Liners got a circular letter from a music publishing firm that asked for song lyrics. She sent them a verse and got back a contract, ready for signature. But before signing, she called the Better Business Bureau. It was found that the small type said she'd have to shell out $110 Moral: Investigate before you invest . . . Two bookstores protest our recent wisecrack that "what this country needs is a good $5 wedding present." The Better Mouse Trap Book Shop (110 S. Pitt st., Alexandria, Va.) and the Washington Jewish Book Store (832 Shepherd st. nw.) say they're just loaded with useful and interesting gifts, specially selected to sell for less than a finif . . . Speaking of selling: Hugh Guidi, one of the few radio announcers who really knows how to "sell" a commercial, is now doing his pitch on the WTOP airwaves. A break on the networks couldn't happen to a nicer guy . . . Clara R. Kennedy of 6128 New Hampshire ave. ne. wonders how all the reporters missed the delightful little story about her neighbor, Police Inspector Floyd Truscott. There was a double auto accident in front of Truscott's house a couple of Saturday nights ago, and the first on the scene was Inspector Truscott — barefoot, and attired in pajamas. But until he was relieved by his buddies from No. 6, the inspector took charge of things, directed traffic around the wreckage, and in general made it clear that he still remembers how to be a good cop—even in somewhat unconventional garb . . . Mary Rowley of 5428 30th pl. nw. invites all District Liners to attend tonight's performance of "Aladdin" (Recreation Department's "Masquers," Roosevelt High School, admission 18 cents). Before the play starts, a magician will entertain the audience (8 p. m.) with feats of skill and prestidigitation—and I can't help but wonder whether that amazing 18-cent admission charge is one of his magic tricks.

ADD SIGNS

Gertrude E. Upton of 1673 Columbia rd. nw. is back from York Village, Me., with one of the funniest "sign" items we've ever carried. Atop the village's general store, Gertrude found the legend:

"General Store. Wet Goods, Dry Goods, Canned Goods. Mr. Gallagher, Owner and General Manager. Mrs. Gallagher, Boss."

NEW YORK—Mayor O'Dwyer told a friend last week that before the end of the year he will announce that he is not a candidate for reelection, and that on the day his successor is inaugurated he will walk out of City Hall, drop a dime in the subway fare booth and go home alone. He intends to practice law in New York and Washington.

Despite the pressure, the New York Star will not come out for Wallace. The paper, successor to PM, will support Truman. . . . Charles Boyer dubbed the French dialogue for "Arch of Triumph" while he was in Paris. . . . For the first time in its history, Neiman-Marcus, the Dallas store, will charge an admission fee for its annual fashion show. The beneficiary will be the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund.

Ted Lyons, the White Sox manager and former American League pitcher, served in the Marine Corps. He listened to a man who said he had been a Marine, and who tried to describe the danger and terror he'd gone through in the invasion of Guadalcanal, Saipan and Okinawa. . . . "I know all about that, but I've been in tougher spots," said Lyons. For instance?" challenged the other . . . "In the late '20's, stepping up to the mound against the N. Y. Yankees" replied Lyons, "and having to pitch against Ruth, Gehrig and Meusel."

Chico Marx is an avid gambler. After some haggling over salary, he and a few musicians who worked for him were booked into a Nevada nightclub for $7000 a week. On the first night Chico went into the Gambling Room and lost $27,000 . . . The owners realizing that an orcestra leader would have little inspiration to work if he owed that much money to his employer, arranged a settlement—Chico would perform there for 4 weeks, without salary. And he was barred from entering the Gambling Room. On the first night of this new, 4-week engagement, Chico went to a Gambling Room across the street, and lost $13,000.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Army Shuns Many Able Vets

Some of the cockeyed inconsistencies of Washington officialdom are verily wondrous to behold.

Here is the latest beaut:

On Tuesday, President Truman made an address ardently pleading for public support of the national Employ-the Physically Handicapped Week, October 3-9. He pointed out two significant facts: (1) the industrial record shows conclusively that when given the opportunity to work, handicaps almost invariably prove above average in productivity, regularity and loyalty, and (2) that with the marked labor shortages existing in many fields, it is both good business and good humanity to give jobs to handicaps.

Col. R. S. Allen

With deep feeling, Mr. Truman urged employers to give handicaps a chance to make themselves useful and self-supporting beings. The President's speech was moving and a real credit to him.

Reverse Picture

Yet, at the same time the President was making this touching appeal to private employers, one of the biggest Government employers was giving the cold shoulder to thousands of highly competent handicaps whom it had made.

This is the United States Army—of which the President, as Commander in Chief, is boss, and which is now moaning to the high heavens about a desperate shortage of officers to train the forthcoming draft levy.

The Army says it needs 37,000 additional officers for this purpose. To date, about 2500 reserve officers have volunteered to return to active duty. The Army is talking of drafting officers to meet its urgent needs.

But at the same time that the Army is doing all this whining and blustering, it has on its rolls thousands of retired combat veterans who would make the finest type of training personnel. These officers were shelved because their battle-incurred impairments do not square with the Army's high, and in some respects archaic, physical requirements for field duty.

But the Army's immediate need is not officers for rigorous field duty. It needs officers to train men for such duty. This untapped reservoir of battle-experienced veterans is a matchless source for such trainers. These men have been through the mill. Their knowledge and skill can't be bought for love or money. Their very disabilities give them an added value as an inspiration.

When Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was Chief of Staff, he saw that clearly. He put through an order allowing disabled noncommissioned officers to enlist for limited duty in the Regular Army. The Navy, today, has an admiral on active duty who lost a foot in battle.

But the Army has always been inane and extravagant in personnel matters. Last spring when Army brass were shrieking that they didn't have enough troops to man combat units, thousands of husky young soldiers were idling away their time doing wholly unnecessary sentry duty at posts in the United States. They were just for show purposes, nothing more. There are hundreds of them doing this sort of thing right now in Washington.

Why the Army is not making use of its thousands of highly skilled disabled officers is a mystery only the tradition-bound brass can answer. It's true it would be something new, and that is a staggering objection. But if private employers can gainfully use handicaps, why not the United States Army?

Perhaps the President ought to deliver his speech again—to the Pentagon brass. Or, better still, as Commander in Chief he could order them to climb out of the cobwebs and do no less than he is urging others to do.

Exit Griswold

Dwight Griswold is quitting as United States aid administrator in Greece. The former Nebraska Governor is now packing in Athens to return to the United States early next month. Griswold is resigning to take part in the Republican election campaign. He hopes to land in the Dewey Cabinet—if there is one.

MGR Flashes

Medical and other leaders from all sections of the Nation will attend the convention of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped in Washington, August 20-22. Dynamo of the A. F. P. H. is Paul A. Strachan, one of the "fathers" of the national employ the handicapped week . . . Beyond all words

I love you more sincerely, dear . . . Than I could ever say . . . And more than I could let you know . . . In any other way . . . I love you with a lasting love . . . That never feels a pain . . . Except when you are sad and you . . . Are walking in the rain . . . Whatever time of day or night . . . Or color of the sky . . . I would not look for other lips . . . Or ever say good-by . . . Because there is no other one . . . Who means so much to me . . . Beyond today and back as far . . . As every memory . . . And all the minutes, days and weeks . . . And months of every year . . . Would never give me time to tell . . . How much I love you, dear.
